MRS. EATON CRIES From Prison Cell: I'LL SOON BE FREE

DEATH IN WAKE OF BIG STORM

INDIANAPOLIS, March 21.—Two persons were killed and several injured, two perhaps fatally, early today, during the most destructive windstorm that has struck this vicinity in years. The storm raged for several hours, causing great damage to property.

The wind reached a velocity of sixty miles an hour at 6 o'clock. Chimneys, trees and signs were blown down and many windows broken by flying debris.

Heavy damage was done in Kentucky, reports say. Houses and barns were unroofed or ruined by the wind.

A 270-foot span of a new bridge over Salt River at West Point was blown away. Losses are also reported from districts near to Louisville. Wires were blown down, and only the vaguest reports were received.

Many persons were injured in northern Arkansas, northern Mississippi, western Tennessee and southern Missouri. Wire service out of Memphis in all directions was demoralized by the storm, which in some instances approached a tornado in proportions.

Serious damage was done in the vicinity of Hoxie, Ark., where a number of houses were blown down. In Mississippi the storm was severe from Grenada to Water Valley. At Sonsboro, Miss., there was a miniature cloudburst, and the earth was shaken by thunder peals. The wind blew sixty-three miles an hour at Nashville, and at Murfreesboro, Tenn., a number of buildings were wrecked.

Lifesavers went out to try to rescue six men in a launch two miles off Sandusky, O., harbor, who were caught in the storm. The boat is on the rocks at Danbury, eight miles from Sandusky. Several men are reported in danger there. Two fishing smacks containing six men are also missing.

DORR EXCEPTIONS READY ON APRIL 15

Attorney C. Neal Barney of Salem, counsel for William A. Dorr, the convicted murderer of William Marsh, the Lynn soap manufacturer, will have the exceptions on which he will seek a new trial for Dorr ready to file with Judge Quinn in the Essex Superior Court on April 15. It is said the exceptions are few in number. As soon as Judge Quinn passes on the exceptions he may proceed to sentence Dorr.

Allen and Sheer Deal With Pilgrims Balked by Griffith

CHARLOTTSVILLE, Va., March 21.—There is a hitch in the deal which was to have sent outfielders Allen and Sheer to the Boston Nationals. Griffith has changed his mind about Allen. He sees enough in the youngster from Sharon to justify his keeping some sort of a string on him, for he may develop into major league class within a year.

He has, therefore, decided not to turn him over to the rival league club, but proposes to farm him to some minor league club, where he will have a chance to develop and from which the Washington club can recall him in the Fall.

Having failed in his effort to get Allen, Manager Stallings does not seem anxious to carry out the other end of the arrangement and take Sheer, so that the entire matter may be dropped by both clubs.

ONCE ABANDONED STEAMER IS AGAIN IN COMMISSION

The former Bull Line steamer, Carolyn, which fourteen months ago was an abandoned wreck on the ledges of Matinic Island, Me., was today floated from Simpson's dry-dock, East Boston, and will enter the coal carrying trade.

William H. Johnson, a Boston plumber, bought the steamer after several wrecking companies had made unsuccessful attempts to float it. He floated the craft down to Boston, hired the drydock, and, although entirely unfamiliar with shipbuilding, put in practically a new bottom.

The boat has been in the dry-dock for four months, and many experts declared that it would be impossible to repair the vessel.

INQUIRY IN DEATH OF MISS CUMMINGS

An inquest to inquire into the cause of the death of Miss Elizabeth Cummings, who died in Malden ten days ago, will be held before Judge Sweetser in the Malden District Court on March 29. The details affecting the death of the girl have been under investigation by District Attorney Higgins. The cause of death was given as blood poisoning. An analysis of some of the organs of the girl's body was made by Professor Whitney. He will make known his findings at the inquest.

PROF. FINE SLATER FOR GERMAN ENVOY

NEW YORK, March 21.—Professor John Barchard Fine, formerly dean of Princeton University, has been offered and is expected to accept the post of Ambassador to Germany to succeed John G. A. Leishman of Pennsylvania. This information was obtained "from reliable sources," it is declared.

GREENFIELD BANK TO REOPEN APRIL 1

GREENFIELD, March 21.—The Greenfield Savings Bank, which was closed by the commissioners in February, 1908, will be reopened on April 1. Commissioner Thorndike today sent notices to the several thousand depositors that the conduct of the institution would be restored to the trustees. The assets of the bank, according to the commissioners, are $3,056,497, and the deposits $2,838,075.

FOSS URGES MORE BANKING FACILITIES

Governor Foss, in a special message to the Legislature this afternoon, declared there was urgent need of more adequate banking and credit facilities in rural communities. He urged the Legislature, in addition to the question of credit unions, to consider the establishment of local corporations to issue land mortgages.

STEAM COLLIER EVERETT AGROUND

The steam collier Everett, Captain Giles, grounded on Lovell's Island in the fog early today. She was floated on the rising tide and came back to this port. An examination by D. S. Murphy, agent for Lloyd's, showed that the vessel was intact and it proceeded on its voyage to Virginia.

SHOOTS AS DAUGHTER LOOKS ON

In sight of his ten-year-old daughter and a number of shoe operatives returning to their work shortly after noon, Joseph L. Raffa fired a bullet into his brain, on the front steps of his home at No. 25 Lacouta court, Lynn.

The man tumbled to the sidewalk, and his daughter Mary threw herself upon his body, crying: "What's the matter, Papa?" Mrs. Raffa, who was in the house, heard the shot, and running to the window, saw the prostrate form of her husband on the sidewalk.

Raffa was rushed to the Lynn Hospital, where it was said that he could not live. The bullet entered his left temple and penetrated his brain.

The man formerly conducted a barber shop, but was forced to give it up because of ill-health. Recently he has been heard to say that he was of no use to his family, and in order to relieve their wants it is believed that he decided to take his life, in the hope that they would secure his insurance.

He has three children besides Mary, the oldest thirteen and the youngest a year and a half. He had just eaten dinner with the family and said good-by. Raffa walked out on to the steps and drew from his pocket a revolver, which he purchased last night with borrowed money.

STEAMER WORKER HURT.

While working on the deck of the steamer Amsterdite at Mystic wharf, Charlestown, Axel Fondman, thirty-five years old, was struck by a falling boom and received a bad scalp wound and bruises about the chest. He was taken to the Relief Hospital.

President Eliot Declines Offer of British Mission

Dr. Charles W. Eliot, president-emeritus of Harvard, has refused the post of Ambassador to the Court of St. James because of his advanced years and disinclination to live abroad.

The AMERICAN learned of the refusal today from an authoritative source. News that the position had been offered Dr. Eliot came directly from the White House.

Dr. Eliot himself refused to comment on the matter in any way other than to say that all information must come from the other end of the line.

RUMOR WILSON FLED MEXICO TO SAVE HIS LIFE

MEXICO CITY, March 21.—A report that United States Ambassador Wilson's life to Vera Cruz was in the nature of a flight to avoid the dangers of a death conspiracy were circulated here today.

According to this report, the cabal against the life of provisional President Huerta, which was foiled by the arrest of ten of the conspirators, included an attempt upon the life of the United States Ambassador, because of his support of the new provisional government. This plot was fostered by Madero sympathizers, it is said. Mr. Wilson is also said to have been urged by President Huerta to leave Mexico City until the plot could be fully stamped out.

Rurales made several arrests during the night, and it is believed that by Sunday all danger will be past.

FIRE IN BROOKLINE GARAGE—LOSS $1,000

Fire in the Brookline town garage today seriously damaged two automobiles belonging to different departments, and caused a loss of about $1,000. The fire was caused by a touring car used by the street department back-firing. The flames spread to a truck used by the wire department. Both machines were rolled outside the garage, and the blaze was extinguished by the fire department.

ACCUSED WOMAN SURE SHE WILL PROVE INNOCENCE

Mrs. Jennie May Eaton, charged with murdering, by poison, her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, was as cool and confident in her cell in Plymouth jail today, as though she were pursuing her household duties in her Assinippi home.

Brave and serene was Mrs. Eaton in both attitude and statements.

"I have no fear," she wrote in a letter which went to her younger daughter, Dorothy, today.

WRITES TO COMFORT FAMILY.

"DON'T WORRY," SAYS MRS. EATON

Do not worry about me.
I have no fear.
I shall be with you again in a few days.
Tell mother not to worry, for everything will come out all right.

—From Mrs. Eaton's letter to her daughter, Dorothy.

The letter was short and was apparently written with the chief purpose of comforting the two daughters and the aged mother, Mrs. George Harrison.

The accused woman's serenity is born of great confidence that she will soon be free again.

Mrs. Eaton asserted her innocence, as though there were not the slightest question about it.

She said:

"The idea of accusing me of poisoning is ridiculous. They have absolutely nothing to base such an opinion upon.

"I am sure to be freed.

"My whole income depended upon the Admiral's living and has ceased with his death."

So calm was Mrs. Eaton that it is a question if she was not more at ease, outwardly at least, than Sheriff Henry Porter and Mrs. Porter. The latter is matron of the jail and both, of course, feel the responsibilities in the new and important prisoner committed to their keeping.

"Don't Worry," Her First Word.

The letter which Mrs. Eaton wrote to Dorothy was such as a mother would write to cheer the agonized household from which she had been so suddenly taken.

The burden of her injunction to them was "Don't worry," the modern phrase which has come to be the sunshine cry of society.

While the police were seeking additional evidence against Mrs. Eaton—with persistent rumors of a second arrest filling the air—the accused widow and mother wrote to insure her old mother and her two young daughters that "I shall be with you again in a few days."

Mrs. Eaton urged Dorothy particularly to "take good care of mother" (Mrs. Harrison).

The woman charged with a capital

YEAR AND A HALF FOR A GUN THREAT

Willie W. Ward, forty-five, of St. John, N. B., was today given one and a half years in the House of Correction on the charge of carrying a loaded revolver, and also on a white slave charge. His wife was also charged with being idle and disorderly, and will be held until Monday for sentence. It is charged that Ward threatened to shoot his wife while the two were in a West End moving picture house.

SALOONS REMAINED OPEN FROM 12 TO 3

Although Mayor Fitzgerald sent a request to the License Commissioners that the saloons in Boston close today from 12 until 3 o'clock, in observance of Good Friday, members of the board said the Mayor's request came so late they were unable to carry it out. Many of the saloons in Greater Boston, especially those in Charlestown, were closed during the hours mentioned, by voluntary action of the proprietors.

WIDOW WITNESS IN LONDON POISON MYSTERY.

LONDON, March 21.—A hint of the trend which the investigation into the death a year ago of Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Meeking, a multi-millionaire land owner, will take was given today in a statement from the home office to the effect that a formal inquest will be held and that the sprightly young widow will be one of the principle witnesses.

The fact that poison experts are working on the case indicates that the office and the family of the dead millionaire suspect that there may have been foul play.

McCOOMBS STILL IN DOUBT ON FRENCH POST.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—None of the now vacant diplomatic posts has been definitely filled. Chairman McCombs called at the White House today, but would authorize no statement when he left, saying he would later consider the matter of the French post with the President.

8 A. M. SALOON OPENING FIGHT AT STATE HOUSE

Representatives of the liquor interests and temperance organizations of the State clashed today before the legislative Committee on Legal Affairs in their second battle of the session over proposed liquor legislation.

The hearing was on the so-called daylight liquor bill introduced by the Anti-Saloon League. The bill prohibits the sale of liquor in saloons before 8 a. m. Under the present law saloons open at 6 a. m.

Arthur J. Davis, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and Robert A. Woods of the South End House were the principal advocates of the measure. Their principal argument was that a large percentage of industrial accidents result from workmen visiting a saloon or hotel on their way to work.

James R. Nicholson, president of the Brewers' Association of Massachusetts, was the first speaker in opposition to the bill. He gave statistics of industrial accidents to show the arguments of the advocates were not sound.

THE HIGH COST OF STEAM IS LATEST

SPENCER, March 21.—"High cost of steam" is the town talk of Spencer, and not the high cost of living. The fire engineers say the price of steam has advanced $100 a year and they base their claim on demand of the officials of the Isaac Prouty Company. This year the engineers will ask for an appropriation of $4,500 instead of $4,400. The extra $100 is because the Prouty Company asks $200 for the steam furnished to blow the fire whistle at the shop each year instead of $100 as in the past.

Mayor Puts Ban on "Playboy" by Irish Players

At the request of Mayor Fitzgerald "The Playboy of the Western World" has been dropped from the repertoire of the Irish Players, who come to this city next week. The request was a mild way of putting the official ban on.

The play has stirred up the resentment of Irish people in nearly every city in which it has been played in this country. In some cities the show moved audiences to acts of violence.

MRS. HARRIS LOSES IN FIGHT AGAINST MRS. BERRY'S WILL

After deliberating for twenty-three hours, a jury at Dedham returned a verdict against Mrs. Addie S. Harris of Quincy, who had brought suit to have set aside the will of her foster-mother, Mrs. Sophia Berry.

Mrs. Berry left about $10,000. Her cousins received large bequests and her foster-daughter but $100 under the terms of her will. Mrs. Harris brought suit against the executor, George H. Brown, alleging that her foster-mother was of unsound mind when the will was drawn and that undue influence was used in procuring the instrument by Emily Blake, Ann, Lizzie and John Newcomb and Mary Lyons, cousins of Mrs. Harris and beneficiaries under the will.

It was brought out during the trial that Mrs. Berry had adopted Mrs. Harris when the latter was but nine years old, and that she was displeased because Mrs. Harris eloped and was married when she was but sixteen.

AGED DORCHESTER WOMAN IS KILLED IN HOME BY GAS

Mrs. Margaret Baxley, aged eighty-eight, was found dead in bed today from gas asphyxiation at the home of her daughter, with whom she lived, Mrs. Jerden W. Osborne of No. 105 Richmond street, Dorchester Lower Mills. It is believed she retired leaving the gas in her room burning low, and the jet was afterward extinguished by a draft.

Her daughter, passing her mother's room today, smelled the escaping gas. She called Dr. Richard E. Smith of No. 66 River street, when her efforts to rouse her mother failed. Mrs. Baxley was dead when the doctor arrived.

FIND WIDOW DEAD WITH GAS TURNED ON

Mrs. Esther Tolhter, sixty-eight, a widow, was found dead on the floor of her room at No. 61 Rutland street, South Eden, today. The gas was open and Medical Examiner Leary pronounced death to be due to accidental gas poisoning.

STUDENT GETS RIGHT TO VOTE AFTER CONTEST

W. S. Warfield, a law student at Harvard, was given the right to be registered as a voter by Justice Braley of the Supreme Court today. He dismissed a writ of mandamus brought by Warfield against the assessors of Cambridge, on the promise of City Solicitor Aylward of Cambridge that Warfield's name would be placed on the assessors' lists.

Warfield, who lives at No. 201 Craigie Hall, Cambridge, claimed that he had gone to the assessors' office on the night of September 9, 1912, accompanied by two others for purpose of identification, and that Bernard F. Fallon, an assessor, refused to admit him to registration.

Fallon on the stand, testified that Warfield had refused to answer certain questions. He therefore refused to accept him. The question was one regarding the manner in which Warfield derived his support. Warfield was called to the stand and stated that he received his support from his father, who resided in Chicago. He stated that he was student; was not a pauper, nor likely to become one, as he was twenty-four years of age, and was willing to meet with all the requirements sought by the board of assessors. He further claimed that the Board of Assessors of Cambridge had denied him the right of citizenship.

Solicitor Aylward was ordered by the court to pay the plaintiff $30 disbursed in bringing the action. He also approved of the action by Fallon and stated that he would undoubtedly have done the same thing if he had been in Fallon's place.

DOHERTY'S FALL DUE TO ACCIDENT

That Anthony Doherty, who was killed by a fall from the top floor at No. 19 Burney street, Roxbury, did not commit suicide, but fell accidentally, is the report today of Medical Examiner Leary, who viewed the body.

The police report states that the young man died a suicide, and this report is absolutely denied by the Medical Examiner. Doherty was living with his uncle, Constatine Doherty, at the time of the accident.

White House Egg Rolling Approved by Mr. Tumulty

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Children who roll eggs next Monday on the White House lawn will have their fun under the personal protection of the President's secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, who is the father of six children.

It was suggested that the children as litter White House yard that they ought to be excluded.

"If the children get any pleasure out of egg rolling, they can litter eggs all they want," said Mr. Tumulty. "I'll be there to see the fun and to see that they are not molested."

Government Finds Hired Girl Beats Any Potato Machine

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The only economical and effective method of removing the husk from an oblong Irish potato is for the hired girl to seize it firmly in the left hand, take a sharp cuso-knife in the right hand, then nimbly chase the blade around immediately under the side and deftly remove it without cutting the fingers.

An official report on the subject of paring a potato reaches this conclusion:

It seems that the present machines do a most effective and acceptable job on a perfectly round potato, but when the 'murphy' arrives long and slender, or awned off and hammered down, the trouble begins.

STRIKE PUTS MEN'S EASTER GARB IN PERIL

Four hundred journeymen tailors struck in this city this morning, completely tying up the high-grade custom-made branch of the men's clothing industry and throwing out of work some 2,000 non-journeymen assistants connected with the calling locally.

This makes 5,000 men and women on strike in the Boston clothing trades, including 800 ladies' tailors and dressmakers, who went out yesterday; 2,500 operatives on men's ready-made clothing, on strike for eight weeks; and 200 on ready-made clothing for women and girls, who struck almost three weeks ago. Some 12,000 others have returned to work, under settlements effected by their respective unions.

With Back Bay women in peril of being denied their Easter finery through strikes in modistes' shops, men today are also faced with the possibility of not getting their parade clothes in time.

The striking journeymen tailors established headquarters at No. 604 Washington street today, where twelve firms, employing 100 of their number, offered to settle within an hour after the strike was called. Their general demands call for an eight-hour day, higher standardized wages, and full recognition of their union.

The officers of the Ladies' Tailors and Dressmakers' Union, with 800 men and women out, today asserted that only twelve workers in the district had refused to obey the general strike order of their union. And this, with seventy-five shop-crews fully accounted for at their union headquarters, No. 730 Washington street.

Samuel Zorn, chairman of the United Garment Workers' Union strike committee, today declared that 1,000 additional strikers would be sent to New York in a few days if the local strike is not settled. The union already has sent 600 ready-made operatives to that city, where they were snapped up by the manufacturers inside of two hours after landing.

At the request of Mayor Fitzgerald all the theatres and places of public entertainment were closed from noon until three o'clock, out of respect for the day and the event it commemorates.

The request of the Mayor to the theatre managers was worded as follows:

As a mark of respect to the Savior of Mankind, who died upon the Cross of Cavalry on Good Friday, I respectfully ask that your place of amusement be closed for public performances at 12 m. on Friday, March 21, 1913, and remain closed throughout the three succeeding hours, or until 3 o'clock p. m.

W. C. RUSSELL DENIES GIFT TO DAKOTA DAN

William C. Russell was on the witness stand again at the Russell will case today and denied that the exhibit fon pocket-book placed in evidence by "Dakota Dan" was ever presented as a gift by William C to his brother, or to any one else.

This pocket-book was the only boyhood possession brought back by "Dakota," who claimed that all his other belongings were destroyed in a freat Hinckley, Minn., in 1888. All the other personal effects of "Dakota" were destroyed in that fire. Inside the flap of the pocket-book was written "To Daniel Blake Russell from William C. Russell."

The witness denied the inscription was made by him. He also found, what he claims were flaws, in a plan of the old Russell homestead, drawn by "Dakota." He said the arrangement of the rooms and the furnishings they contained were much out of place. This plan was supposed to show the arrangement of the house and its contents in 1885.

The strikers have refused an increase of 50 cents weekly offered by Treasurer Borden. A special detail of police guarded the plant at the opening hour this morning and dispersed pickets and warned them to keep away or arrests would follow.

COULD NOT STRAIGHTEN UP

A PECULIAR CONDITION REMOVED

Some time ago I was troubled with pains in the back and kidneys, at times could not straighten up after bending over. Came to the conclusion that it was my kidneys. Read Dr. Kilmer's advertisement and made up my mind I would try Swamp-Root. During the time taking the contents of two bottles I passed two gall stones of quite good size. Today I am free from pains in the back and kidneys for Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root removed all the difficulty, and I can now go about my work and have no trouble with my back or kidneys. I will gladly recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to anyone suffering from kidney or liver trouble. You are at liberty to publish this if you so desire.

GRATEFUL PRAISE BY LOVING MOTHER

Tells How Father John's Medicine Brought Health to Her Little Boy.

"I am grateful for Father John's Medicine," says Mrs. Margarette Murphy of Chicago, in a recent letter. "My little boy was two years old when he was first taken sick and I took him to many doctors, but not one did him any good. He is past five years old now. He is all better now, thanks to Father John's Medicine. He had pneumonia, twice and whooping cough. Soon after he began to take Father John's Medicine I knew he was mending. I am very thankful for Father John's Medicine. We all take it now. It is a blessing in my home. I will never be without it." (Signed) MRS. MARGARETTE MURPHY, 3010 Quinn St., Chicago, Ill.

Careful mothers have no fear in using Father John's Medicine, because it is safe for the little ones as well as the older members of the family, and because it is free from alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form. ELLEN HUTCHINS, five-year-old child, who is recovering after falling out of a third-story window. She fell into the arms of Patrick Moriarty.

GIRL WHO FELL THREE STORIES IS RECOVERING

Five-year-old Helen Hutchins is recovering from a few bruises sustained in the most remarkable experience a Boston girl ever underwent when she fell three stories and landed in the arms of Patrick Moriarty of No. 35 Church place.

With another child of about her own age, Helen was playing in the third floor hallway at No. 177 Cabot street, Roxbury. She climbed to the sill of an open window at the front of the house, and lost her balance when the other child rushed at her to tag her.

Moriarty was standing on the sidewalk talking to a friend directly beneath the window. He looked up just in time to see Helen fall from the window and stretching out his arms caught her. He broke the fall of thirty-five feet to such an extent that the little girl received only a few bruises.

Helen was rushed to the City Hospital, but after an examination she was sent home to her overjoyed mother and now is the heroine of the neighborhood.

CONSTANTINE TAKES OATH AS KING OF GREECE

WASHINGTON, March 21.—President Wilson received the following telegram today in answer to his message of condolence sent to Queen Olga of Greece:

I beg you to accept and transmit to the government and people of the United States the Greek nation's, our family's and my own sincere thanks for your heartfelt sympathy in our most crushing grief. OLGA.

ATHENS, March 21.—Constantine was formally proclaimed King of the Hellenes today, and the oath was administered on the balcony of the Chamber of Deputies.

The streets about the National Assembly building were crowded with his subjecting subjects, who greeted the new monarch with shouts of "Long Live the King" and "Hail Constantine."

Constantine drove from the palace to the National Assembly building in an automobile. He wore the uniform of a Greek general. There was a band of crepe around his left sleeve.

Immediately after the oath had been administered a proclamation was published and telegraphed to all points throughout the kingdom. It was the first official state document to bear the new King's signature.

The body of King George will arrive here next Thursday on a warship and will lie in state in this city until March 30.

MONTENEGRO, TINY KINGDOM, DEFIES AUSTRIA

CETTINGE, Montenegro, March 21.—Although Austro-Hungary is over ninety-six times the size of Montenegro, the little mountain kingdom of King Nicholas refuses to be intimidated by the mightier power. This announcement was made today by King Nicholas and the Montenegrin Cabinet, after it had made a defiant reply to the Austrian note demanding satisfaction and explanations of various offending incidents around Scutari. In the answer Montenegro refused to allow free passage of noncombatants from Scutari, and refused to make any explanation as to why Montenegrin artillery shelled the Austrian vessel Skodra on Lake Scutari.

BOY CAUGHT BY ELEVATOR MAY DIE FROM INJURIES

While riding on a freight elevator at the rear of No. 18 Beach street, today, Hyman Thorner, thirteen, living at No. 11 Savoy street, was caught and wedged between the elevator floor and the wall of the elevator shaft, and the firemen were called to cut the elevator to pieces before he could be released. The boy was taken to the Carney Emergency Hospital suffering from internal injuries which may prove fatal.

The injured boy with a boy companion, William Thomas of Lacouia street, were playing about the elevator and it is thought young Thorar tried to get off while it was going. He had swung over the edge of the elevator platform, and resting there on his stomach was preparing to drop when caught.

WARNING FOR CORPORATIONS SHY ON TAX PAYMENTS

Corporations in this Commonwealth which are delinquent in payment of their taxes received warning today from Justice Braley of the Supreme Court, who following custom issued injunctions against several from continuing business, on request of the Attorney-General's office. Judge Braley said:

"I doubt very much if I should ever dissolve any injunction once granted against a corporation for not paying its taxes unless there were extraordinary reasons for the non-payment of the tax.

"If a corporation doesn't take enough interest in its welfare and welfare of the State to pay its taxes when due, then I think it should not be allowed to do busines."

VETERAN DEAD; WIFE SHOT TOO; SOLDIER HELD

AUGUSTA, Me., March 21.—Edward Hardy, aged thirty-eight, a veteran of the Spanish war, is dead of a bullet wound at his camp near Togus, and his wife lies at the point of death with two bullets in her breast. Frank Vannah, aged sixty-five, a veteran of the Civil War, accused by the woman of doing the shooting, is under arrest. The camp of the Hardys is located on the south shore of the Togus stream, about a mile from the Soldiers' Home. Vannah lives at the home.

The camp in which the Hardys live is a collection of huts, and those who live there support themselves by trading with the inmates of the home.

The shooting is said to have followed a three-cornered quarrel between Hardy, his wife and Vannah. The latter denies the shooting and claims he has not left the government reservation in several days.

German Diplomat May Defy Kaiser to Wed American

WASHINGTON, March 21.—A persistent rumor is afloat in social circles here that, despite the recent edict of the German Foreign Office against diplomats marrying foreigners, a betrothal exists between Miss Gladys Ingalls and Herr Von Buelow, of the German Embassy staff here.

Miss Ingalls is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melville Ingalls of Washington, Hot Springs and Cincinnati. Her father is a millionaire and chairman of the board of directors of the Big Four Railroad.

Herr Von Buelow's friends are saying he is so much in love with the fair American that he will gladly give up a promising diplomatic career, if necessary, to marry her.

Miss Ingalls has always been a favorite with the diplomatic corps and is a close friend of Miss Helen Taft.

CARDINAL PLANS FUNERAL OF MGR. O'CALLAGHAN

Cardinal O'Connell is to supervise arrangements for the funeral of the Rt. Rev. Denis O'Callaghan, P. R., of St. Augustine's Church, South Boston, who died last night.

Today the curates of St. Augustine's will confer with the Cardinal to help him in arranging the funeral plans.

The news of Mgr. O'Callaghan's death caused widespread sorrow throughout South Boston today. It was broken to his parishioners by the tolling of the church bell. Scores had gathered in F street for news of his condition and when the bell tolled a great hush came over the throng.

The end came peacefully. Just a few moments before his death Mgr. O'Callaghan dropped into a deep sleep, from which he never awoke. By his side when he died were the Rev. Father Gilbride, the Rev. Father Costello, the Rev. Father Lyons, resident chaplain of Carney Hospital, and Dr. Robert M. Daley.

Although the Monsignor's death has been expected for the past few days it was not until nine o'clock last night that hope was given up. Dr. Patrick J. Timmins and Dr. Robert M. Daley, who were then in attendance, saw that death was near and began to administer oxygen.

Was Widely Known.

The Right Reverend Denis O'Callaghan, D. D., was a Boston priest who was known and revered, not only in all sections of the United States, through which he had extensively travelled, but also across the Atlantic, especially in Ireland, of whose national cause he was ever a devoted supporter.

Father O'Callaghan—as everybody in South Boston loved to call him, rather than the title given him years ago by the Vatican—was born in Cork County, Ireland. He was only five when he came to America with his parents.

Father O'Callaghan was ordained at St. Mary's Seminary, Baltimore, in 1865.

Coming home to Massachusetts, he was assigned to a curacy at SS. Peter and Paul, South Boston. Here he remained three years. In June, 1868, he began his pastorate at St. Augustine's, where he has since labored.

Beloved by his own people and congregation, he was respected by his non-Catholic neighbors, many of whom were associated with him on official boards and in the direction of public movements.

This public and personal esteem was given formal voice on many occasions, but most notably when he received from Pope Leo XIII. the honor and title of domestic prelate to the Vatican, and again on June 30 last, when thousands joined in the celebration of his forty-second anniversary as a member of the priesthood.

Important Parish Work.

The cause of Ireland was ever dear to Monsignor O'Callaghan. He crossed the ocean many times.

His usual companion was Dr. P. J. Timmins of South Boston, who was one of the monsignor's dearest friends.

His parish activities were among the most important and extensive in the entire archdiocese.

Connected with the parish work of St. Augustine's are many societies and guilds, in all of which Dr. O'Callaghan ever took the warmest interest.

Prominent among these is St. Augustine's Lyceum, a literary and musical body, whose membership is composed exclusively of young men.

COUNTESS GIZYCKI, one of those invited to discuss the influence of reports of gay social life upon girls of scant means.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—The effect of cocktail drinking, cigarette smoking and other excesses of society as examples for the working girls of the country, will be discussed at the public hearing the Illinois White Slave Commission will hold here tomorrow.

Invitations have been sent to leaders of Washington society to attend and express their views. The list includes Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Mrs. Preston Gibson, Mrs. Edson Bradley, Mrs. Henmen Jennings, Miss Katharine Jennings, Mrs. Robert Patterson, the Countess Glayckl, Mrs. Christian Hemmick, Madam Havenith, wife of the Belgian Minister; Madam Riano, wife of the Spanish Minister; Mrs. Hunt Slater, Mrs. Huntington Wilson and Mrs. Murray Crane.

WOMAN DENIES CORSETS WILL REFORM WOMEN

Can corsets reform women delinquents? Mrs. Minona S. Jones of Illinois declares that they can. Dr. Frances Potter, a leading Massachusetts woman reform worker, says they cannot.

"The statement is absurd," says Dr. Potter, who was for many years house physician at the Massachusetts State Reformatory. She denies the statement of Mrs. Jones that Massachusetts reform institutions for women were most successful because the inmates were allowed to wear corsets. Mrs. Potter's reply is:

In the first place, the women are not allowed to wear corsets in the Massachusetts Reformatory.

Corsets are not hygienic, and that a woman can maintain her self-respect only by wearing them is ridiculous.

There are a great many women who do not wear corsets—a great many more than one might naturally suppose. And they are perfectly self-respecting.

Good, plain, wholesome food, plenty of it and plain clothes, such as any workingman would provide for his family are what Massachusetts gives to her women prisoners, with plenty of industries for those who are able to perform work. A great deal can be done for the woman just leaving the reformatory in the way of providing good influences, right employment and proper protection. But the discipline the delinquents receive during their confinement in the institution contributes largely to their future conduct.

NEPONSET BRIDGE HOLDS UP 5,000

More than 5,000 people were thirty minutes late for their work today as the result of a draw in the Neponset bridge becoming jammed. The bridge was raised to permit the passage of a barge, and it was impossible to lower it again. All the Plymouth division trains running from South Shore points were held up between Neponset and Atlantic.

Wiley as Guest of Brokers, Calls Them "Gamblers"

SAN FRANCISCO, March 21.—There was a tense moment in the Merchants' Exchange here, when Dr. Harvey W. Wiley of pure food fame told an audience of prominent brokers and stock dealers that their business was chiefly gambling.

Dr. Wiley spoke in front of a blackboard covered with chalked quotations on "futures." He said:

I am not much of a believer in this business of buying and selling long before they are produced. I believe you gentlemen are concerned in dealing in "shorts."

There is absolutely no legitimate foundation to this style of business and dealing. It has no relation whatever to producing business which is the only legitimate kind of business. There is no other name to call it except gambling.

CANCEL HEARING AS O'MEARA OBJECTS TO 'SLAVE' EVIDENCE

A Legislative hearing by the Ways and Means Committee scheduled for today on the alleged white slave traffic in and about Boston has been cancelled, owing to the fact Police Commissioner O'Meara, the only person particularly invited to be present, has declined to attend. He sent this note to the committee:

I should be glad to give the Committee on Ways and Means any information that I may possess concerning the resolve for the appointment of a commission to investigate the "white slave" traffic, so-called; but as the work of the Boston Police Department would naturally be considered in such an investigation, I fear that anything that I might do or say for or against the resolve would be subject to misinterpretation. For this reason I trust that I may be excused from attendance, on your committee. Yours respectfully,

STEPHEN O'MEARA.

SENT BECKER TO INVESTIGATE HIS OWN CASE

NEW YORK, March 21.—Mayor Gaynor and Police Commissioner Waldo were warned against the character of Police Lieutenant Charles Becker as far back as August, 1911, according to letters read before the aldermanic committee investigating police graft here. One letter, it was shown, was sent by Mayor Gaynor to police headquarters, and was there turned over to Becker himself "for investigation and report." This letter charged that Becker was getting "more money than a former chief of police."

John P. Lynch, brother-in-law of Becker, who is now in the death house at Sing Sing for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, bitterly denounced the former police officer in a letter to the Mayor.

The letter was referred to Commissioner Waldo, who told the Mayor that "this seems to be a family row," and "Becker is doing excellent work."

"One of my sisters is, unfortunately, his wife; works for him. Teaches school," Lynch wrote to Becker, "and he, hero-like, takes her money. She being away, he asks another of my sisters to come to his house to cook, but immediately attacked her. She successfully resisted him, threatening to cut him with a carving knife; whereupon he got his revolver and shouted that he would shoot her."

MOTHER FOR 10 YEARS, THEN TEACHES AGAIN

By BYRIL WARNE.

Do mothers make good teachers for the public schools of Boston?

This question is occasioned by the application of the teacher of physical culture in Erasmus Hall High School, Brooklyn, N. Y., for leave of absence for one year in order that she may bear and rear a child. This teacher's plea has just been denied by the New York Board of Education.

If you want to see what a mother can do for the school life after an experience in home life and the rearing of children, just go up to the Dillaway School, Roxbury, and have a chat with Mrs. Emma S. Gulliver, the principal of that school.

For ten years, she was away from teaching in school, attending to her duties as mother in a home. Then when conditions changed, she returned to the school life and has been principal of the above school for six years.

Like Mother to Girls.

Girls like to talk with her about themselves.

They do not look upon her simply as a principal.

They talk to her as they would talk to their own mothers.

She tells them about the way they should arrange their hair and their dresses and how to look neat and simple in their stills.

Mrs. Gulliver has shown that a mother's experience is a valuable help to any teacher. She gets nearer the girls and their parents and looks at matters from two points of view: that of the teacher and that of the mother.

The school is organized into groups for play during recess hours. This is one of the most unique plans in Boston for getting all children interested in some type of play.

It's a mother's far-seeing eye that has devised this method of making play just as essential as work in the schoolroom.

Said Mrs. Gulliver:

Methods Are Broadened.

"It is a great help for me to have these heart-to-heart talks with the girls of the school. While they know that I am principal, they also feel that I have a motherly interest in them. One does not want to speak too much of their work in public, as my school here seems to me like a big family.

"Before I was married, I had an experience with girls in teaching, and then after an interval of ten years of married life I felt that I must get back to school life again.

"With my experience as a mother, I have broadened my methods of dealing with the girls. There are so many things that a mother thinks about, and when I am brought in close contact with the girls of the school I cannot forego the thought I am a mother and must look at the girls, not merely from point of view of a principal, but also of a mother.

"My girls and I have motherly talks again and again. Often I talk to the girls just as their mother would talk to them. It may be that their hat is not arranged exactly as a mother would like it. So we have talks about it. The topic of dress often comes up and this must be handled in a delicate manner.

Make Confident of Teacher.

Girls come and confide in me. That is the most encouraging part of my work. When you get girls to do that you have really accomplished much.

I do not see how I could handle the many little problems that are passed out to me constantly without the experience that I have had with my own.

But my work is not simply with the girls in the school, it is also with the parents, with the father and mother.

Here I bear the relation to them as the principal of the school where their daughters are attending school, but in addition to this, I must show the feelings and experience of parenthood.

From that point of view, I am able to talk over many a situation from a parent's viewpoint. They feel that I have this advantage, and that I have the authoritative position as a principal.

The conference that I have had with parents about their children and some feature of the school life are most gratifying in their results.

From my point of view, I can see a great advantage.

MRS. EMMA S. GULLIVER, principal of Dillaway School, whose success with school children answers much mooted question as to whether mothers make good teachers.

THEATRE TRAINS PAY; EXPECT TO CONTINUE THEM

The popularity of the new midnight train service, the campaign for which was inaugurated and carried out largely by the AMERICAN, has proved such that it is believed the Railroad Commission will order their continuation after May 4. The service was commenced February 4.

The Portland division train, which leaves the North Station at 12:01 in the morning, carried 2,258 passengers for the month of February, and the revenue taken in amounted to $455.06, an average of $22.04 a trip. The Southern division train, which runs to Lowell and stops at all way stations, carried 2,282 passengers. This train brought a revenue of $365.85, or an average of $17.55, and the average number of passengers was 103.04.

On the New Haven train, running from the South Station to Providence and Campello and way stations at 12:05 o'clock, 2,047 passengers were carried. This trip averaged 124 passengers, and all exceptionally large traffic is shown on Saturday nights.

The average for Saturdays is 295, while for week day nights it is only 93. The figures show that during the big theatre nights during the month the traffic was quite heavy, which would tend to show that the theatre-goers were the ones who patronized the trains.

The following table shows the number of passengers reported carried on each train for each morning of their operation during February:

LIPTON WILL ABANDON ALL CONDITIONS

BELFAST, Ireland, March 21.—Sir Thomas Lipton announced today that he had written the New York Yacht Club he was willing to remove the conditions in his challenge for the Angrica's cup to which the American yachtsmen object. He said in his letter:

I regret the New York Yacht Club has been unable to accept my challenge. The deed of gift states: The competing yachts or vessels If of one mast shall not be less than sixty-five feet nor more than seventy-five feet at the waterline. It must be presumed that the framers of the deed of gift intended some reasonable meaning should be attached to their words, and they could never have contemplated such an absurdity as challenges if sixty-five feet being met by a ninety-foot defender.

The New York Yacht Club states it would have accepted with pleasure an unconditional challenge. The only conditions I ask are those of the deed of gift.

If upon reconsideration the New York Yacht Club will accept my interpretation I shall be happy to remove from my challenge the words to which they object.

My reason for selecting a seventy-five footer is that a yacht of this dimension represents the largest type of cutter now racing in any part of the world.

BOY OF EIGHT YEARS COMPLETELY BALD

Solid Crust Covered Head. Spread to Face. Face Mass of Sores Cracked and Running. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment Two Months. Well as Ever.

209 Columbus Ave., Suite 7, Boston, Mass.—"When my boy was eight years old he started with an itch on his head. I noticed small patches resembling dandruff appearing in several places over his head, where the hair had also fallen out. It rapidly spread all over the head and in less than three weeks he was completely bald. A solid crust covered the head resembling a cap. This crust had cracks that a watery substance oozed from all the time, and when he scratched it would bleed. It rapidly spread to his face and his eyes became inflamed and burned; he suffered severe pain. Then there were days that he lost his sight completely.

"His face by this time was a mass of sores, cracked and running, and badly swollen. He would scratch it in his sleep until it was as raw as a piece of beef and he all covered with blood. He looked unnatural, and cried most all the time. One of his ears was split at the top and also at the bottom. It was only a matter of a short time before it would have dropped off. I became so alarmed that I sent it up. A neighbor asked me to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In two months of faithful treatment with Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was as well as ever." (Signed) Mrs. Nellie A. Salik, May 6, 1912.

Cuticura Soap 25c. and Cuticura Ointment 50c. are sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

A HAPPY CHILD IN A FEW HOURS

When Cross, Sick, Feverish, Tongue Coated or Bilious, Give Delicious "Syrup of Figs."

Mother! look at the tongue! See if it is coated. If your child is listless, drooping, isn't sleeping well, is restless, doesn't eat heartily or is cross, irritable, out of sorts with everybody, stomach sour, feverish, breath bad; has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, or is full of cold, it means the little one's stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with poisons and clogged up waste and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

Give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs, and in a few hours the foul, decaying constipated matter, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without nausea, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well and smiling child shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna, and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on package.

Ask your druggist for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse anything else offered.

'Anti' Electric Sign Starts Suffrage War in Brookline

"It" will go down in suffrage history as the Big Billboard Battle of Brookline.

"It"—the battle—has already started. The war is on between the suffragists and the "antis," and the first field of action is the richest town in the world. So Brookline folk are all stirred up over the contest.

It started when the "antis" put up a big sign at the side of a building at the corner of Washington and Boylston streets, Brookline. At night the sign is illuminated by electric lights. It reads:

WOMEN do NOT WANT to VOTE
ANTI-Suffrage Association.

Not to be outdone, the Brookline suffragists decided to erect a "votes for women" sign directly below the "anti" billboard. This sign will inform the public that the town's suffrage headquarters are just around the corner.

The "antis" have retained Attorney William H. White to look up the law to see if they can't get an injunction to keep the "pros" from putting up their sign. Meanwhile, the suffragists say they are going right ahead with their sign.

SUFFRAGISTS PLAN STARTLING COUP IN CONGRESS, APRIL 7

WASHINGTON, March 21.—"We are not going to have another parade," stated Miss Alice Paul, head of the suffragist forces in Washington. "April 7, after the mass meeting in Columbia Theatre, we are going to send a delegation, 531 strong, to the Capitol to call on the Congressmen.

"Plans were rushed forward at suffrage headquarters today for startling members of the Senate and House by the demonstration, April 7, for the constitutional amendment. The leaders in this movement are determined that the past custom of Congress in granting hearings on suffrage bills and then dropping the entire matter will not be allowed to obtain this year."

ELEVATED TESTS 'CAR FULL' EXPRESS PLAN ON ONE LINE

Today the Boston Elevated Railway Company began the experiment of evenly distributing passengers to the surface line cars. To accomplish this, cars from North Cambridge to Harvard square and return, when filled, displayed a new sign, "car full." The car displaying such a sign runs express to its destination.

END LIVER TROUBLE WITHOUT CALOMEL

Untrustworthy Drug, Thought to Loosen the Teeth, Now Made Absolutely Unnecessary

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—the mildest but surest laxative known, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. Dr. Edwards has been calomel's most uncompromising foe. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets, a rare combination of vegetable compounds mixed with olive oil. These pleasant, harmless little tablets do all the good that calomel does, but have no bad after-effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel at all, but to let Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a distorted liver. Take Olive Tablets when you feel "logey" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" the clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits.

At 10c and 25c a box.
The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

JURY WRESTLES OVER GARB OF BATHING GIRL

CHICAGO, March 21.—Whether "Sophrosyne Mora," a picture of a girl standing by the ocean's edge clad much as was Eve, shall don a bathing suit or be confined in the City's Art Institute is a question twelve good men and true must decide in Municipal Judge Rooney's Court today. The final opinion is expected to be reached by late afternoon. The picture, which won medals in Paris, attracted much attention in an art store until it was ordered out by the authorities. Now the question as to whether or not it shall be exhibited is before the jury of twelve, which includes a brick mason, a plumber, a farmer and engineer.

Sergeant Jeremiah O'Connor, official art censor, is prosecuting Fred W. Jackson, the art dealer, who displayed this masterpiece of Puvis Chelsas.

Poets, sculptors and painters came by the score as voluntary witnesses for the pictured damsel, now in duress. They would keep her as she is said says O'Connor up.

GAYNOR SOUGHT TO SUPPRESS REAL VICE FACTS IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, March 21.—At a brief session the Curran Aldermanic Committee investigating police conditions made public letters written by Mayor Gaynor and Police Commissioner Waldo indicating the desire of both to suppress any charges against the police department and to prevent the real conditions from being revealed.

Among the letters read into the record by Emory R. Buckner, counsel to the committee, was one from the Mayor to Commissioner Waldo, dated December 19, 1912, in which the Mayor's only criticism of Waldo's management of the police appears.

The Mayor indicated anger over the disclosures by Mary Goode before the committee, and indicated that Waldo should have heard Mrs. Goode's story and suppressed it. Waldo, in reply, places the blame for Mrs. Goode's appearance before the committee and her remarkable story of the persecution of immoral women by the police on Deputy Commissioner Walsh.

INTERSTATE BOARD TO GIVE HEARING ON MELLEN MONOPOLY

Commissioner Prouty of the Interstate Commerce Commission will probably give a hearing in Boston late in April on the Westos & Maine and New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad investigation. The inquiry by the commission into the financial operations of the New York, New Haven & Hartford road will probably be completed in about a week.

FIVE BATTLESHIPS COMING FOR REPAIRS

During the month of April five battleships will be sent to Boston Navy Yard for general overhauling, according to a letter received by Congressman Curley from the Navy Department. Navy-yard employes have been complaining of lack of work.

Mellen Seeking "Fewer Cabbages, More Bouquets"

The big railroad cat is out of the bag at last!

The secret of what President Charles Sanger Mellen of the New Haven wants in New England has been revealed. He tells it himself. Just listen:

When asked what he would really "like" in New England, the New Haven's head replied crisply:

"FEWER CABBAGES and MORE BOUQUETS."

Mr. Mellen didn't explain what he meant. He didn't say if he thought too many "cabbages" had been coming his way. He DID, however, intimate that bouquets would be his personal preference. Maybe the public will take his hint—and maybe they won't.

Mr. Mellen coined the epigram during the recent conference between the directors of the New Haven and the directors of the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

The Boston & Maine Railroad has announced it will continue the following construction work: The big car shops at Billerica, the classification yard at Mechanicsville, N. Y.; the construction of the line from Springfield to Bondsville, the extension of the Connecticut River line to Brattleboro, Vt., and the establishment of block signals and the elimination of the more important grade crossings, such as those in Lynn.

TO PASS POLICE LINES, JUST ASK TO BE ARRESTED

Hundreds of pedestrians and commuters generally who have been held up by patrolmen where police lines had been extended across Boston streets, will read with keen sest today that there is at least one man in Boston who has managed to "get through" after being refused permission to pass.

The man is Ralph De Gunto. When a Boston policeman halted him, De Gunto insisted he be allowed to pass or be placed under arrest. The policeman let him pass.

The incident happened when a number of men's garment strikers marched along Harrison avenue extension. The police stretched lines across nearby streets. None of the strikers was permitted to pass. Protests were of no avail. The strikers charged the police with permitting only non-union workers and detectives to pass through.

Pedestrian in a hurry were halted for five minutes or more. Many said they had to catch trains, but the police remained deaf. De Gunto was applauded after he had forced a policeman to let him pass.

DAUGHTERS OF BOSTON PASTORS TRAPPED INTO RESORTS, LETTERS SHOW

ALBANY, N. Y., March 21.—Daughters of well-known clergymen of Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia and New York, girls of royal blood and descendants of prominent families from many countries are, or recently have been inmates of resorts in New York city, according to revelations in letters written by women of the underworld to the Legislative Committee chosen to draft remedial legislation for that city.

So amazing were the facts disclosed in some of these life-stories of how girls were trapped that the committee will study the question another week before making its report. Senator Wagner, chairman of the committee, was startled by the conditions revealed. One woman wrote:

I am representing thousands upon thousands of unfortunate girls that are without homes; some are working for starvation wages; some are selling their souls to keep off starvation and cold. These women are much like other women, where all grades are to be found in their ranks, some good, some bad, and others very bad.

My experience is that the outcast women of society have a code of morals, and are honest in the majority. The better half would be surprised to know of the self-sacrifices that many of these women make for those who are dependent upon them for sustenance, and almost every girl has one or more dependent upon her for support.

I have had girls in my house who have had royal blood in their veins. The army of the fallen is recruited from all ranks of society, including the daughters of the elect.

Ready to Save Girls.

A second said:

If you wish to get rid of graft in the Police Department for all time to come, remove the Police Department from all temptation. Take the social evil out of the Police Department entirely—that is the only and surest way—and I am positive that in a few months all grafters in the department will have resigned or turned honest. If we were protected by the city, instead of being persecuted and oppressed and driven, and hounded from pillar to post, we would be of great help to the city by protecting the young women. We could convict every one of these men by a simple process of informing your committee. Should a man bring a girl to our houses to be sold or to collect her earnings, we will pledge ourselves to help prosecute and convict any white slaver that comes before us, because the girl he holds in slavery will not appear against him. It is only through us and in co-operation with us that you will accomplish this.

Would Aid Prosecutors.

Should a young girl come to us with the intention of leading that life—our observation tells us she is a novice—we could again communicate with this committee and thus save her from going any further by taking care of her and persuading her and giving her a little purse, which we have done so many times, and send her home to her parents without publicity, and before it is too late. Another evil you will get rid of, and which is one of our most disgraceful sights, is the dreadful number of young girls on the streets, some of them only fourteen or fifteen years of age.

Another letter was as follows:

What has your white slave law done toward the arrest and conviction of men living off the earnings of the outcasts of the city? Do you make more than one or two arrests, followed by convictions, per year of these men? No, and you never will without the help of the heads of resorts.

Your laws begin and end with the words, "and if convicted." We are the ones who can convict and not you. We know the men who beat the girls and take every penny from them nightly when they leave the resorts, not you.

We are not afraid to give testimony toward this end; afraid to protect and hide the poor victims until her master receives his sentence and afterward protect and help her to accumulate a little bank account that may be the means of sending her home reformed and welcome by her parents.

Is there not some one in this great city morally strong and brave enough to stand up and say: "Something must be done for the outcasts?" Is our cry for help to be passed unheard? Your hearts and homes, yes, and pocketbooks, are thrown open always to the cry for help for sufferers from floods, fire and disaster. But what of us?

Are we to be railroaded to institution houses on perjured affidavits, hounded and abused, with no voice to even speak for us? Help, oh, help us, citizens of New York.

Many of the women argued in support of the plan presented by the citizens' committee to the Legislators proposing a social welfare commission. They declare the time has come when New York should at least handle the subject practically and sensibly.

A Reasonable Plea For The Stomach

If Your Stomach Is Lacking in Digestive Power, Why Not Help the Stomach Do Its Work?

Not with drugs, but with a reinforcement of digestive agents, such as are naturally at work in the stomach. Scientific analysis shows that digestion requires pepsin, nitrogenous ferments, and the secretion of hydrochloric acid. When your food fails to digest, it is proof positive that some of these agents are lacking in your digestive apparatus.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets contain nothing but these natural elements necessary to digestion, and when placed at work in the weak stomach and small intestines, supply what these organs need. They stimulate the gastric glands and gradually bring the digestive organs back to their normal condition.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets have been subjected to critical chemical tests at home and abroad and are found to contain nothing but natural digestives

Chemical Laboratory Telegraphic address, "Diffusion," London. Telephone No 11029 Central. 20 Cullum St., Fenchurch St., E. C. London, 9th Aug., 1905.

I have analyzed most carefully a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets (which I bought myself at a city chemist's shop for the purpose), manufactured by the F. A. Stuart Co., 86 Clerkenwell Road, London, E. C., and have to report that I cannot find any trace of vegetable or mineral poisons. Knowing the ingredients of the tablets, I am of opinion th at they are admirably adaptable for the purpose for which they are intended. (Signed)

John R. Brooke, F. I. C., F. C. S.

There is no secret in the preparation of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets. Their composition is commonly known among physicians. They are the most popular of all remedies for indigestion, dyspepsia, water brash, insomnia, loss of appetite, melancholia, constipation, dysentery and kindred diseases originating from improper dissolution and assimilation of foods, because they are thoroughly reliable and harmless to man or child.

Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are at once a safe and powerful remedy. Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest your food for you when your stomach can't.

Ill with the measles, the three children of Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell of No. 77 Mills street, Malden, were rescued from their home after a gas explosion had set it on fire. CASSIDY SHOWS HOW CANDY MEN WANT TO HIDE USE OF GLUCOSE

Mr. Cassidy today presents the striking points from yesterday's hearing at the State House, when a bill to regulate the manufacture of candy was discussed.

The bill, as presented to the committee, forbids the use of glucose, ethereal flavors, or fat substitutes for chocolate in candy unless the presence of these substances is declared to the purchaser.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

"Ninety-nine per cent. of all candy is made of glucose."

Please notice that the above statement is enclosed in quotation marks. It is not made on my own authority, but was the statement of a chemist representing one of the big glucose manufacturers of the country.

Another striking statement, made by another chemist, was that glucose is what a potato turns to in the stomach—in other words, that glucose is simply a pre-digested potato.

Your candies, therefore, are not sugar candies, but glucose-candies, or potato-candies.

One speaker referred to the "prejudice against glucose." He was asked why he believed such a prejudice existed. His answer was, "Glucose sounds so much like glue."

That is not the real reason. Cane sugar is made by crushing and boiling sugar cane. Glucose is made by treating corn with chemicals. The "starch" of the corn is first "segregated." Then it is "incompletely hydrolized by treatment with hydrochloric or muriatic acid." These dangerous acids are later "completely neutralized."

It Is Made Chemically.

Glucose, as a matter of fact, is a perfectly wholesome product. But it is made chemically, and not by any natural treatment of the corn. Therefore people mistrust it.

The bill under discussion provides that all candy containing glucose must be so marked when it is sold. That is, it provides that you, each of you, have a right to know whether the candy you pay 80 cents a pound for, is made of 50 to 60 per cent. glucose, or not.

The opponents of the bill did not advance any reason why the public should not be told what they are buying—why the public should not know that glucose is a big ingredient in the candy they purchase. In response to a question: "Do you object to labelling candy containing glucose?" one witness answered:

"No, except because there is such a prejudice against glucose."

Auerbach Makes Plea.

Justus T. Auerbach presented the bill and argued for a favorable report upon it. He showed the committee twenty samples of other foods, in each of which the presence of glucose was declared on the label.

"Since the United States government requires other foods to be marked, if they contain glucose, I believe candy should be marked in the same way," he said. He continued:

"I have shown you sample bottles of jelly containing 60 and 70 per cent. glucose. The fact that these jellies contain glucose is stated on the label. Why is candy different from these jellies? If the jellies must be marked as containing glucose, why not the candy?

Attorney Auerbach did not assert that glucose is injurious to health—only that it is a cheap product, and that where used, it decreases the quality of the finished article of food. He said in part:

Candies contain from 25 to 60 per cent. glucose. Every candy made in Boston falls under this rule. But glucose is not a necessary ingredient of candy. I have a letter here from one of the biggest companies in the country—the Belle Mead Sweets, in Trenton, N. J. (He read the letter). They do not use glucose, and they say it is not necessary to high class candy. They consider it a gross adulteration.

"I used to think, and I imagined most people believe, that candy is made largely from sugar. This is not true. Glucose is used instead.

Glucose Much Cheaper.

Glucose costs less than two cents a pound. If you pay eighty cents for a pound of candy and sixty per cent of that candy is glucose, you are paying about forty-five cents for about one cent's worth of glucose. That's a good profit for the maker.

If the candy he buys is made of glucose, the buyer has a right to know it. The candy should be labelled.

Mrs. Frank W. Page and Mrs. Anna T. Steinmer went on record for the bill. Then Charles H. Innes opened the case against the bill. Mr. Innes is the well known death accelerator of legislation that his clients don't like.

He argued—I use his words—that the bill would "cripple" the candy industry. This bill simply provides that the candy man must tell you what you are getting. He added that the people "want candy with glucose in it." In the next breath he argued that the people should not be told their candy contains glucose.

Dr. Arthur P. Bryant, who came all the way from Clinton, Ia., to represent one of the big glucose companies in fighting the bill, described the chemical processes from which glucose is derived. He gave each member of the committee a tiny bottle containing a sample of glucose. He said:

"I only object to labelling glucose candy because of the prejudice against glucose."

Why Prejudice Exists.

The prejudice against glucose is the result of three facts:

First—It is a chemical product and not a natural one.

Second—It is never sold as glucose, on its merits, but is marketed only as an ingredient of other foods.

Third—It is not so sweet as sugar.

Dr. Bryant admitted under questioning that "candy may be made just about as well by using 'invert sugar' or cream of tartar."

Dr. P. J. Sifles, a young instructor at Simmons and Technology, told how the potato in the stomach is changed and becomes glucose—or a substance practically identical—under the process of digestion. After the hearing, he was asked:

"Glucose is just predigested potato, then?"

"Yes," he answered, "predigested potato, or potato starch—or any other starch."

Do you know that 90 per cent. of your candies here in Boston are made of glucose? The glucose men say so.

Briggs Not There.

Do you think you have a right to know that? The glucose men say "not." They say it will "cripple the candy industry."

At the close of the hearing Mr. Innes asked all who wished to be recorded for the bill to rise. Twenty arose.

Mr. Auerbach asked all who were candy dealers to hold up their hands. The twenty held up their hands.

But the real sensation of the hearing was that Mr. Briggs wasn't there.

RENEW SEARCH FOR POISON SALE AS MISSING LINK IN EATON DEATH CASE

SECOND ARREST IS HINTED AT BY STATE DETECTIVES AT WORK ON MYSTERY.

offence—likened by the State as a modern Lucretia Borgia—even thought. In this carefully worded epistle, of the stock on the Eaton place.

She had in mind the chickens which she had been feeding herself since the Admiral died.

Mrs. Eaton also showed today that she is mindful of her health in jail. She begged Sheriff Porter to arrange as much exercise for her as he could.

Confident of Freedom.

The letter which Mrs. Eaton wrote to Dorothy, the first one she sent from her jail cell, was substantially as follows:

I want to say you, first of all, not to worry about me, for I have no fear.

Take care of all the stock and things on the place and don't let anything suffer while I am away on account of my absence, for I shall be with you again in a few days.

Take care of mother and tell her not to worry over it for everything will come out all right.

Mrs. Eaton's every attitude and word today were those of a woman who faces a terrible calamity with high spirit and clear purpose.

She rose at 8 o'clock. One of the first things she said was in praise of her jail quarters.

Asked what she would like for breakfast she replied:

"As I don't seem to feel very hungry this morning I think I would better have something light. Some eggs on toast and a glass of milk would be nice."

After breakfast Mrs. Eaton asked for the matron. Mrs. Porter, wife of the sheriff and matron of the jail, came. The two women talked for a few minutes.

Anxious for Exercise.

Then the prisoner asked if the sheriff would come to her cell a moment. When Sheriff Porter arrived Mrs. Eaton said:

"Am I to be allowed to go outside and exercise? I have always been a hard-working woman. I am accustomed to exercise and need it."

Sheriff Porter told her she could begin exercising within the jail walls right away and that he would consider the request for outside walking.

Mrs. Eaton took immediate advantage of the privilege of getting into the greater area of the jail corridors. There she began walking to and fro, with the measured gait characteristic of tall, well-built women.

Then Mrs. Eaton wished to be occupied. Again she asked the Sheriff:

"Haven't you some work around the jail that I can do? I am very fond of housework and always have done it."

No time was lost by the State today in preparing to bring its charges against Mrs. Eaton before the Plymouth Grand Jury. Sheriff Porter received a formal order from Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior Court to summon the grand jurors to Plymouth courthouse next Monday morning. A duplicate of the Chief Justice's order was received by Clerk Edward E. Hobart of the Plymouth Superior Court.

Eight deputy sheriffs were immediately given summonses to serve on the various grand jurors. Deputy John T. Condon of Rockland, who did much of the detective work on the Eaton investigation with State Officer John Scott, was one of the batch. The other seven, who sentenced over Plymouth County today with summonses, included Joseph T. Collingwood of Plymouth, Earl P. Blake of Brockton and George H. Wheeler, George E. Hersey of Whitman, Charles L. Spring of Hingham, John F. Turner of Scituate and James W. Hurley of Wareham.

Visit Eaton Home Again.

The Eaton home at Assinippi was visited today by State Officer John Scott and Deputy Sheriff John T. Condon, who questioned Mrs. Eaton's two daughters at length.

The two officials sought to learn any more they could of the details of Admiral Eaton's death. Both girls have already testified at the inquest.

State Officer Scott said that so far the officials have been unable to find where the poison was obtained. Search has been made through the "poison sale" books of drugstores north and south of Boston.

Scott said that if it could be learned who, if any, bought the poison, a second arrest might follow. On this point the State police and the District Attorney seem to differ.

But District Attorney Albert F. Barker declared today that no second arrest is in sight. He said:

"We have no reason to suppose that anyone beside Mrs. Eaton was concerned in this affair. Although we have not found where the poison was bought, no suspicion exists that anyone else bought it or had anything to do with it. I wish to set at rest unjust suspicions that may have arisen against another person."

Hard Pressed for Money.

The Eaton household is in a serious financial predicament.

Mrs. Eaton has said that her living depended solely on the admiral. While his income, the half-pay of a rear admiral, would be $4,000 a year, he not only had saved nothing but was in debt. He had not even settled the bills for Jane Ainsworth's wedding.

This income ceases with the admiral's death, though Mrs. Eaton would ordinarily be entitled to a modest pension, from $30 to $50 a month.

The admiral's will held by Judge George W. Kelley has not even been filed for probate.

There's an $1,800 mortgage hanging over the house.

Mrs. Harrison, the aged grandmother, is ill and the question of immediate support is pressing.

I Had to Tell the Whole Truth, Said Mrs. Eaton's Mother.

"When they asked me questions I had to tell the whole truth, no matter whom it hurt or whom it aided. I simply told the whole truth."—Mrs. George Harrison's statement on the Eaton inquest.

Unhonored at Grave.

The gallant officer lays down his life and without the semblance of a natural emblem across his bier, without military honors, without a single representative from the ranks of this great country's navy, without a clergyman to offer prayer, without relatives or friends present to remove this lifeless body from the hearse to the grave. The body of Admiral Eaton is committed to its final resting place in a quiet spot of a country town, beside this loving, idolized daughter and—his devoted early companion, Mary Anne Varnum Eaton, whose memory Dracut cherishes.

A nation's distinguished son is buried with less ceremony than a friendless pauper or outcast. It is a sad reflection on a great nation when it culpably disregards honoring its worthy and illustrious servants with the customary burial accorded the humblest citizen. An event to be regretted when relatives or friends fail to pay proper tribute in attending such a solemn obligation as laying their own feelingly away.

RESUME SEARCH FOR POISON SALE IN EATON MYSTERY

The authorities investigating the slaying of Rear-Admiral Eaton, whose widow, Mrs. Jenie May Harrison Eaton, is in the Plymouth County Jail charged with murder, today renewed their hunt to discover where and by whom the poison, which caused death, was purchased. The authorities declared the poison purchase is the "missing link" in their investigation.

State Detective Scott declares that the discovery of a poison purchase may result in a second arrest in the case. Scott frankly admits that the officials are entirely at sea in regard to where or by whom the poison was bought.

The authorities declared that the poison trail will be followed until every drug store in and around Greater Boston has been visited.

A second turn to the investigation today was the search for a motive in the death mystery. A letter—the last letter written by the Rear Admiral—is expected to throw light on this quest. This letter was written to a cousin of the Rear Admiral in Boston, and is believed to have caused District Attorney Barker to order the arrest of Mrs. Eaton.

The letter reached District Attorney Barker on Wednesday. The arrest followed within twenty-four hours.

The clews in the poison trail in the case have been few. To date the authorities have searched drug stores in Boston and Somerville but without success. State Detective Scott made this frank admission today:

We do not know where, when, nor by whom the poison was bought. When we do find out, of course, a second arrest may be possible.

GRAND JURORS WHOM BARKER WILL CALL IN SPECIAL SESSION

Here are the members of the Plymouth County Grand Jury who have been called in special session in the Eaton case:

Charles M. Allen, retired, Duxbury.
William H. Appleby, shoe operative, Abington.
Alfred W. Chandler, painter, Kingston.
Thomas Coyne, Jr., clerk, Wareham.
Elisha A. Cudworth, carpenter, Middleboro.
Herbert L. Curtis, shoemaker, Hanson.
Amos C. Delano, contractor, Marion.
Willard H. Gay, shoe operative, Whitman.
William L. Healey, carpenter, Marshfield.
Charles M. Hines, gardener, Rockland.

Frederick H. Sylvester, real estate, Hull.
James T. Thomas, painter, Halifax.
Robert A. Torrance, expressman, Plymouth.
Harrison Wilder, retired, Norwell.
Perez L. Young, laborer, Scituate.

The members of the Grand Jury are drawn in January for the ensuing year. They are still on duty, having simply been dismissed by Justice Henry A. King of Springfield at the February sitting of the Superior Criminal Court.

In his dismissal at that time Judge King told the jurors, "You are dismissed until the next sitting of this court in June, unless summoned to a special session."

It was learned today that District Attorney Barker, on his visit to Chief Justice Aiken in Boston, discussed the possibility of taking this action and sought Justice Aiken's advice on the matter.

EATON WIDOW SAYS SHE IS "INDIGNANT" AT MURDER CHARGE

A special session of the Plymouth County Grand Jury has been called by District Attorney Barker of Brockton to hear the evidence in the case of Mrs. Jenie May Harrison Eaton, accused of slaying her husband, Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton.

Attorney Geogan made the following statement:

I have no statement of any length to make. Mrs. Eaton exposed herself to me while going down in the auto to Plymouth as being indignant at any such crime being charged to her.

STOMACH MISERY JUST VANISHES

Time It! No Indigestion, Gas or Sourness Five Minutes After Taking "Pape's Diapepsin."

If what you just ate is souring on your stomach or lies like a lump of lead, refusing to digest, or you belch gas and eructate sour, undigested food, or have a feeling of dizziness, heartburn, fullness, nausea, bad taste in mouth and stomach headache—this is indigestion.

A full case of Pape's Diapepsin costs only fifty cents and will thoroughly cure your out-of-order stomach and leave sufficient about the house in case some one else in the family may suffer from stomach trouble or indigestion.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on these fifty-cent cases, then you will understand why dyspeptic trouble of all kinds must go, and why they usually relieve sour, out-of-order stomachs or indigestion in five minutes. Diapepsin is harmless and tastes like candy, though each dose contains power sufficient to digest and prepare for assimilation into the blood all the food you eat; besides, it makes you go to the table with a healthy appetite; but what will please you most is that you will feel that your stomach and intestines are clean and fresh, and you will not need to resort to laxatives or liver pills for biliousness or constipation.

This city will have many Diapepsin cranks, as some people will call them, but you will be cranky about this splendid stomach preparation, too, if you ever try a little for indigestion or gastritis or any other stomach misery.

Get some now, this minute, and forever rid yourself of stomach trouble and indigestion.

NAVAL FLAG NOW FLOATS OVER GRAVE OF ADMIRAL

The American Jack, which flies at the prow of every United States battleship, was today placed over the grave of Rear Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, in a quiet corner of the cemetery at Dracut, near Lowell.

The flag was presented by the Kearsarge Association of Naval Veterans of Boston, and was received by Joseph Varnum, a nephew of the Admiral, from the hands of Captain Freeman A. Langley of the Kearsarge Association.

Accompanied by two newspapermen, Mr. Varnum today went to the cemetery from his home in Lowell to pay the last tribute to the dead officer. With bared head he implanted the staff of the naval emblem at the head of the grave, and as the three men silently withdrew the wind caught the banner and lifted it gently, as though in salute.

Tribute to Eaton's Memory.

A tender tribute to the dead Admiral was paid today by Harry W. J. Howe of Dracut, who characterized him as "a gentleman in every particular. Fascinating in manner, impulsive in nature. Scholarly, dignified, genial, gallant and courteous."

"As a son of Dracut," said Mr. Howe, "within whose borders now repose the remains of this distinguished naval officer, who has rendered such valiant service to his country, I speak a word of tribute.

As one who twenty-five years ago, stood by the open grave in this same small burial place of my native town, I assisted in lowering the casket containing the body of a beautiful girl of fourteen, then the only child of Admiral and Mary Anne Varnum Eaton. Isabel Varnum Eaton was tenderly committed to earth, while father and mother, relatives and friends gathered about in deepest sorrow.

Contrast that scene with the one of the past week, when the father, Admiral Joseph Giles Eaton, the adopted son of historical Dracut, whose memory Dracut will ever be proud to honor, who served his nation long, faithfully and gallantly in her great navy as commander, as hero at Santiago, recipient of a medal of honor from this country for his part in that great battle, was laid at rest.

SLAIN MAN ALWAYS PLEADING POVERTY IN SPITE OF LIBERAL NAVAL PENSION

COUSIN'S LETTER ABOUT ADMIRAL'S FINANCIAL CONDITION LEADS TO NEW INQUIRY.

What became of Admiral Eaton's money?

How was his liberal pension money spent?

Who got it? Why should the Admiral be forced to plead poverty to one of his male relatives; or to try to sell some personal effects?

The Plymouth county officials, who have secured the arrest of the Admiral's wife on a charge of murdering him by poison, investigated the financial end of the tangled family affairs today.

Official attention was drawn particularly to the Admiral's money and its use through a letter from Charles B. Brooks, cousin of the Admiral, to District Attorney Barker. Mr. Brooks is a retired banker of No. 25 Brimmer street, West End.

Mr. Brooks, in his letter to the District Attorney, enclosed a letter he had received from Rear-Admiral Eaton the day before the Admiral died. It was probably the last letter the murdered commander ever wrote.

Mr. Brooks also raises the question of the time of the Admiral's death. He believes that was early Friday evening and not Saturday morning.

When asked about the letter he received from the Admiral, Mr. Brooks said:

Brooks Talks About Letter.

I cannot give out the text of the letter for publication unless the District Attorney consents. I shall first have to hear from him.

The odd part of it is that about the time I received it the Admiral died. When did I get it? Late on the afternoon of Friday, March 7. That is my opinion is when he died. I know it has been said that he passed away Friday night or early Saturday morning, but I have my own theory about that.

I feel convinced that Admiral Eaton died early Friday evening and that nothing was said about his death for hours. My reason for thinking so? Well, I cannot give any.

No, I haven't been talking with any of the officials. I have just figured it out for myself and I am almost convinced he died earlier than has been reported. I believe he died close to the time I got the letter which as I said before was late that Friday afternoon.

Perhaps he was dead when Dr. Frame, the family physician, got there. Who knows? The doctor has been very reticent. There may be a good reason. Or perhaps the Admiral was in a dying condition when the doctor was there to treat Mrs. Harrison.

Remember at the start that I am not very familiar with the Admiral's household. You see, I hadn't seen him for years. He and I were second cousins. His mother and my mother were sisters. I would like to contradict some of the reports that certain members of the family have been circulating about the Admiral. He was as fine a gentleman as one could meet. He was not the scapegoat and tippler they have tried to make him out.

Asked About "Book Agent."

It is not right to paint him in false colors now that he is dead. He was a high bred and cultured man. He came from good stock. He was not unsound mentally prior to his death. His letter showed that in every one. It was careful and precise and delightfully phrased. No words were wasted.

For example, in one sentence he wrote: "Do you know of a book agent?" He later crossed out the word "of" making he care a nit more. As I said before, I hadn't seen the Admiral for years and I never saw his second wife.

Were they unhappy? Well, I guess the newspaper reports of the past week came pretty near hitting the mark. You re all what Mrs. Hannah Barnes of Roxland said—the Mrs. Barnes who worked as housekeeper at the Admiral's home six weeks while Mrs. Eaton was in Washington. Well, Mrs. Barnes told how the Admiral was so shy on money that he frequently had to borrow a dollar bill for car fare. I don't doubt it in the least.

What became of his pension? How do I know? I told you I haven't visited him and he hasn't visited me.

What I do know is that about a month before his death the Admiral wrote to me. He said he was hard up for cash and I wish it understood that he did not ask me for any loan. He said—but I had better not tell what he wrote.

Well, see, it is true that he mentioned having stood for Lee's wedding reception and luncheon at the Somerset. Those marriage festivities cost him $300. The Admiral confessed the bills and then was unable to meet them. Does is reported to have kept nagging him to settle them.

Wrote Month Before Death.

Then he wrote to me. He approached the subject like a true gentleman. He said he didn't wish to bother me too much, but wanted to know if I could sell a book and some war envelopes for him. The book was a rare old atlas of the world and the envelopes contained data of importance.

He asked me to do what I could and suggested that I try the Boston Athenaeum and the Boston Public Library. He didn't fix any price, but told me to get all I could for them, as he was sorry in need of the money.

I visited both places mentioned and conferred with the officials in charge, but the highest I could get was $5 for the atlas and no more for the envelopes. I wrote back to the Admiral.

I was sorry to have to report what low bids had been made. But it was impossible to do better. It was then that he penned his last letter, which I got the afternoon he died. In that he expressed disappointment. He said he had seen an atlas, similar to the one he had, sell for $10 in Philadelphia some years ago.

No, I positively cannot tell the rest that he wrote in that letter, as I have formally handed it over to Deputy Sheriff Barker at Brockton. I felt that the government officials ought to have it, but I wasn't quite decided in my own mind on the matter.

That is how I came to consult Chief Justice Aiken of the Superior Court and Attorney A. E. Pulsbury. You know they are pretty good authorities. They both agreed that a copy of the letter ought to be forwarded to District Attorney Barker, and I sent it along last Tuesday. I figure he got it by Wednesday at the latest.

Admiral Did not Expect to Die.

Now as to the Admiral's last letter. It was not long, and it was direct and businesslike. It showed two things very conclusively, in my opinion—first, that he, as of sound, even brilliant mind, and, second, that he did not expect to die.

It showed also that he could not have been as sick Thursday as the family have given us to understand.

He wrote the letter Thursday at his home. It was in his small, careful handwriting and well worded. The envelope was postmarked "Assinippi, Thursday p. m., March 6." As he did not address to my home, No. 25 Brimmer street, direct, I did not receive it here until late Friday afternoon, March 7. Before I could reply to it, he was dead. That is what makes me believe he died hours before as it reported to have passed away Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Why? Idid you propose or suggest to him, Mr. Brooks? was asked Mr. Brooks replied:

No, but I feel justified as he was dead Friday evening early. When I read of the award reports about a park fund and that probably he had been pensioned up pork, I felt the coming right out and contradicting them. Wait I refrained.

That letter, of which the District Attorney now has a copy tells a tale. The time it was written, the vigor of the handwriting all of the phraseology shows the Admiral to have been enjoying his ordinary good health up to Thursday evening, although he has been reported to have been taken suddenly ill that day.

It will probably result in a summons for me. If they want me I shall go. What has been my theory of his death from the start? Well, I have considered it highly suspicious. Yes, I might say it was in line with other things that had happened before.

What, for instance? I was asked.

Well, that nonsensical charge about the Admiral poisoning the adopted boys.

That was trash and evidently done for a reason. There are many queer and baffling phases to this case, but that may all be explained in time. I contend despite anything that has appeared that I am not going out the order for publication. Not now, at any rate. Perhaps I will later.

If the Admiral had been a pauper or a pauper's pocket could have been no surer. In fact he had a half pay pension from the navy that amounted to about $17 a day, this sum of honorable all to make a good start, they said.

A friend from did not a to consult from relatives in Boston that his home life was unhappy, and that his financial affairs were desperate. But so far as can be learned he proudly refrained from intimating.

Tried to Sell Books.

The most pathetic feature of the attempted sale of personal prop- is the fact that the letter to Mr. Brooks, the last penned by the Admiral, recalled Mr. Brooks the day the Admiral died.

It is said today that the receipt of the letter hastened the arrest of Mrs. Eaton.

Developments today showed that the authorities have been busy. Mrs. Eaton's former husband, Isador Hart, Jr., now a coffee, formerly a clerk of the Admiral's home, was questioned at length at present with his father, a wealthy dweller in Arizona.

Seek Motive in Letter.

Friends of Mrs. Eaton say she told some of them she liked her first husband better than the Admiral. This appears to be borne out in a degree at least by the fact that Ainsworth, who is known to have been courting her at the time of the Eaton home in Assinippi and is reported to have received money from her. The Admiral objected to this and is said to have warned Mrs. Eaton never to have "that man around again."

It has been learned in Chicago that Mrs. Eaton, then Mrs. Jennie May Ainsworth, was granted a divorce by Judge John Gibbons in that city, July 12, 1906, from Daniel Henry Ainsworth.

The records show that they were married July 2, 1891, and that there were two daughters, Hazel J. aged thirteen at the time and Dorothy H. aged nine.

The family lived at No. 265 West Park avenue, Oswego, for two years. The wife got her divorce on the ground of drunkenness and her husband did not contest it. She charged that he was "intoxicated six days out of every seven and that he mixed morphine with his drinks."

The authorities are anxious to have a talk with Ainsworth. He wrote to a member of the family as recently as three weeks ago.

MRS. EATON'S ARREST STIRS INTEREST IN CAPITAL CIRCLES

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Washington is greatly interested in the arrest of Mrs. Eaton on a charge of murdering her husband by poison. Nearly half a dozen rear admirals on the retired list of the navy who were Admiral Eaton's close well known in northern Virginia, but not many in the case of "if" at the United States Naval Academy is one their home in Washington. Among these were Rear Admirals John Elliott Pillsbury, Conway H. Arnold, Albert Ross, Richards Clover, Eugene H. C. Leutze, Uriel Sebree, Albert R. Couden, Edwin C. Pendleton, William Swift, James Madison Miller, Richard Rose, William S. Cowles and Edward B. Taussig.

Mrs. Eaton was the daughter of George W. Harrison, who was a fish packer in Alexandria during the days when that sleepy old town was a flourishing shipping centre. She is said to have claimed that she was related to General Benjamin Harrison, former President of the United States.

There is doubt here as to the accuracy of this claim. General Harrison a few years since. It is also not engaged in a business case at the home of Charles F. Brown, No. 38 Vaughn street, Dorchester.

The discovery of Miss Rooney has in contact a new and interesting fact in the Eaton case. This unregenerate of an insane hospital as well as of a used to one. It is evident that Mrs. Eaton thought a nurse in the house might find something about the Rear-Admiral to warrant the suspicion for a commitment of the mentally under. But if that was Mrs. Eaton's intention, the plan fell through, so far as any value result is concerned. Promises by Miss Rooney was unable to justify

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN AT EATON INQUEST WAS BOSTON NURSE

The "mysterious woman witness" at the Tuesday session of the Eaton inquest was discovered today. She is Miss Anna C. Rooney, a trained nurse.

Wellesley Girls Make Hit in First All-College Opera

So successful was the performance of their first all-college operetta, "Utopia," produced in the "barn," that Wellesley college girls are determined to have a similar show every year. Heretofore Wellesley has had a senior operetta, but the "Utopia" cast was drawn from all the classes for the first time in the history of the college.

Miss Shaw tells of the journey in an aeroplane of a number of Phi Beta Kappas to "Utopia." Here they get tired of doing nothing but life their time away and they return to Wellesley to teach the students a proper balance between work and play.

The music was composed by Marion Dix Sullivan of Kansas City, Mo., and Ruth Gould Burrell, '13, of Newton, N. J. The music is by local composers, namely: Bessie Van Saker, '13, of Wellesley; Elizabeth Sloane, '14, of Bridgeport, Ct.; Margaret Stone, '14, of Wellesley Hills; Jennie Davis, '14, St. Joseph, Mo.; Marion Mylrea, '14, of Wayne, Pa., and Margaret Griffin, '15, of Malden.

On the committee in charge of the operetta were Doris Bickelaus, '13, of Auburndale, S. D., business manager; Helen Paul, '13, Philadelphia, head of the chorus, and Sally Garvey, Katherine Davis, '14, of St. Joseph, Mo., head of the music committee, and Marguerite Mabel, '14, of Roxbury, chairman of the costume committee.

CHARGES THEFT OF $1,000,000 FROM SAFE

MUSKOGEE, Okl., March 21.—John S. Roy has sworn out a warrant at Cowan, in Wagoner County, charging J. A. Wishard of Fort Worth, Tex., with stealing $1,000 in notes and securities for $1,000,000 from Roy's safe at his home near Owata. Roy claimed he had notes for $150,000 against Wishard, taken to secure payment for real estate.

NEW OPERAS AND STARS HERE NEXT SEASON

Plans for the next season at the Boston Opera House include the production of a number of new operas with the appearance in Boston of the greatest operatic stars. Director Russell of the Boston Opera Company in his first announcement of his plans for next season mentions the opera novelties, the singers who will appear and tells of an interchange of artists between Boston and the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York. This latter arrangement means the appearance in Boston of Martinelli, the young Italian tenor engaged for next season with the Metropolitan company.

Director Russell stated that he had the promise from Mme. Melba that she would come to Boston for a few performances late in the season. Miss Bori, Mme. Destinn, Mme. Edvina, Miss Garden, Mme. Jomelli, Miss Hempel, Miss Nielsen, Mme. Nordica, Mme. Tetrazzini, Clement, Marcoux and Zenatello are among those with whom he expects to close contracts. There is also a possibility of the return next season of Mme. Lipkowska.

Director Russell said:

Among new works that are being considered and which I hope to bring to performance next season promising are "Boris Godounow," so successfully produced at the Metropolitan Opera House during the present week and which will bring Moussorgsky and the Russian school into the repertory of the Opera House for the first time. "Die Walkuere," which will be the first of the Wagnerian "ring" cycle we have had and which I hope will be the commencement of the ultimate presentation of the entire Teutonic "ring" and "Manon Lescaut," which is to be included in the repertory not alone because of its interest, but also for Miss Garden, who will assume the title character here.

There is also more than a possibility of the giving of Massenet's "The Juggler of Notre Dame," the title role in which is considered by many Miss Garden's greatest achievement. Verdi's "Masked Ball," the scene of which is laid in old Boston, also is being considered, as are certain of the older Italian operas—"La Sonnambula" and perhaps "L'Elisire d'Amore," with a view to the sharing of Mme. Tetrazzini's repertory.

WHAT IS GOOD TO EAT TODAY IN THE MARKET

The number of green vegetables and the variety of fruits offered for sale at this season of the year is a constant source of wonderment to those who knew the limited variety of foodstuffs a generation ago. Moreover, it is predicted that in a few years fast lines of steamers between Boston and South America will make the season for green vegetables and all kinds of fruits almost continuous.

At the present time the Florida and California truck gardens are furnishing new beets, cabbages, cauliflower, carrots, cucumbers, celery, dandelions, kale, onions, radishes, spinach, green beans, asparagus, tomatoes, peas and many other vegetables, formerly obtainable in New England only in mid-Summer or late Fall. South Africa is drawn upon for various peaches, plums, nectarines and other temperate zone fruits.

Strawberries are more plentiful and sell for low prices ranging from 25 to 40 cents a box. During the past week nearly 1,000 crates were received in the Boston markets and readily disposed of.

New maple sugar and syrup are coming into the market in small lots. The price is as yet high, sugar selling for 14 to 18 cents a pound and syrup for $1.25 per gallon or $1 a quart.

A curious condition exists in the Boston butter market. At every other commendable distributing point in the country the price of butter is falling off, but at Boston the high prices of mid-Winter still prevail, and the dealers who have old butter in storage are demanding and receiving prices for their holdings equal to the market quotations for fresh-made butter. The best creamy butter sells for 36½ cents at the creameries. Western butter sells for 32 and 33 cents.

Eggs are selling for very low prices in the wholesale markets, but the retail prices remain about stationary.

MAKES RHEUMATISM PROMPTLY DISAPPEAR

Chronic, Crippled-Up Sufferers Find Relief After a Few Doses of New Remedy Are Taken.

It is needless to suffer any longer with rheumatism, and be all crippled up and bent out of shape with its heart wrenching pains, when you can surely avoid it.

Rheumatism comes from weak, inactive kidneys, that fail to filter from the blood the poisonous waste matter and uric acid, and it is useless to rub on liniments or take ordinary remedies to relieve the pain. This only prolongs the misery and can't possibly cure you.

The only way to cure rheumatism is to remove the cause. The new discovery, Uricsine, does this because it neutralizes and dissolves all the poisonous substances and uric acid that lodge in the joints and muscles to scream and irritate, and cause rheumatism and chronic aches and stiffness. Stop the suffering at once, as Uricsine will drive all the poison from the body and drive it out and out of the system.

Uricsine is the most wonderful result ever made for curing chronic rheumatism kidney trouble and bladder ailments. You will find it different from all other remedies. There is nothing else on earth like it. It matters not how long you have suffered, it is practically impossible to take it long before the pains, stiffness and troubles begin to disappear. You will soon feel like a new person, and you will be surprised at how quickly and easily all suffering will end.

Uricsine comes in tablet form and is sold by druggists everywhere at 50 cents per package, but a trial of an original package can be had at the first class drug store. All druggists are authorized to sell it on a positive guarantee. Three doses a day for a few days is often all that is necessary to relieve the worst backache or overcome urinary disorders.

BUSINESS MEN INSPECT MOTOR TRUCK TYPES

By J. C. KERRISON.

The attendance at the motor truck show, while not by any means as large as that of last week, is nevertheless most gratifying to the management and exhibitors. It is much larger than what one would naturally anticipate at an exhibition of commercial vehicles that appeal mainly to business men and possesses no portion of attraction to the general public.

Ever since the show opened there has been a good attendance. It is significant that the bulk of the daily visitors is composed of men who are interested in transportation matters and who spend considerable time in learning the value of motor vehicles as applied to commercial purposes. They come from all parts of New England.

The business men of this section are deeply interested in power wagons, not merely as investigators, but with the intention of buying one either at once or in the very near future, and it is these men who have been spending a lot of time at the show. They realize that the purchase of a motor truck is something that requires deep consideration and investigation. They are taking the "show me" attitude, feeling that by so doing they not only are enabled to purchase a truck that is best suited to their requirement, but to secure information relative to the use of them that cannot help but be beneficial.

Live Prospects at Show.

The motor wagon is today successfully used in so many different lines of business that it is surprising to note the wide variety of industries represented by the visitors. Often, the salesman has to jump from fruit delivery to fire and station propositions, embracing as they do vastly different requirements. This means that the truck salesman has to have a general knowledge of the requirements of many kinds of business.

In a locality such as Boston, with fifty-four towns and cities within its reach, within a manufacturing center the opportunity for the development of the power wagon prospects is decidedly great. In order to properly develop these prospects the salesman must be alert in the situation and have the facts and figures that assist help but be convincing to the man who knows he wants a motor truck but has not the courage of his convictions.

This show has already established a reputation as a successful exhibit. Many of the dealers and manufacturers have made actual sales, while it is admitted that an average of 250 to 300 live prospects a day are visiting the show. Right began to flock to the show when the doors were opened.

While the medium price truck seems to be very popular, yet it does not overshadow the high priced and heavy tonnage trucks. In fact, one of the exhibitors said: "This show is rather confusing, inasmuch as one day we find a demand for delivery wagons, the next day the visitors seem most interested in one and two ton trucks and the third day they are looking for 5 ton and six ton propositions.

There is little in the exhibit which appeals particularly to the layman, as the display of moving motors is decidedly limited, the moving exhibition being confined quite entirely to dumping and removable bodies. One particular exhibit that attracts no end of attention is a moving body which is kept in operation through out the show period by an electrical device this moving body is slid from the chassis to a platform and then back again, the operation being repeated at frequent intervals to the edification of hundreds.

General Vehicle Shows a Big Electric Line

One of the most complete exhibits of electric commercial vehicles is that by the General Vehicle Company, which has a reputation second to none in the commercial motor vehicle world. The railroad package truck, up to the six ton proposition, similar to that in use by the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company of this city, are shown by this company.

It is an educational exhibition in every sense of the word and Manager Day Baker and his assistants have been kept as busy as bees from the opening of the show. Perhaps there is no other company in the electrical line that is making so extensive a display of electric motor vehicles in the building as is this company.

Advertising Manager F. N. Carle of the company arrived in Boston yesterday, and for the next two or three days will assist Mr. Baker in spreading the G. V. C. gospel.

Some Trucks are better than others —those are Kellys.

A visit to our exhibit in the Mechanics' Building will show you why.

PROMINENT FIGURES AT MOTOR TRUCK SHOW SEEN BY IGOE

Decatur Exhibits Several Types on 1 1-2 Ton Chassis

The Grand Rapids Motor Truck Company, builders of the Decatur truck, a one and one-half ton model, are exhibiting three different styles of bodies and a stripped chassis in their booth in the Main hall at Mechanics Building.

Manager Stanley Martin of the New England branch, is very enthusiastic over the line and says that in 1913 he will sell double the allotment that came into New England last year.

In the Decatur display there is a one and one half ton furniture body which immediately after the show will be delivered to O. G. Hidion, a Roxbury furniture man. There is another closed body electrically lighted for G. D. Gilman, a Somerville cracker manufacturer. This is the second one that the Gilman Company has purchased from the Grand Rapids Motor Truck Company.

Most of the visitors to the Decatur exhibit at the show have been taken to this company's big service station on Green street, Cambridge, which is equipped with most modern machinery and a full line of parts.

Internal Gear Drive on Brown Delivery Trucks

The Marion Motor Car Company of Boston is exhibiting the Brown commercial cars with several different types of bodies in the Exhibition Hall at the motor truck show. Frank Wentworth, who is the head of this company, thinks there is a big field for a light delivery truck in New England and has contracted for several hundred of these cars that he will dispose of in this territory.

The Brown delivery wagon chassis, except for details, is of the conventional design, having a carrying capacity of 1,500 pounds. All of the most advanced ideas of both foreign and American construction are incorporated, resulting in a car that can be maintained at a low upkeep cost and operated by the most inexperienced driver.

The final drive on the rear wheels is through the internal gear type of axle, the principle of this being to supply a solid member to carry the load and a separate one to transmit the power to the wheels.

Construction of Sanford Trucks Is Well Balanced

Orr J. Palmer of Pearl street, Somerville, the New England distributor of the Sanford trucks, is exhibiting this line in the main hall at Mechanics Building. Mr. Palmer has met with great success in the handling of the Sanford truck and in no instance he says has he found one that would not stand up.

"They are absolutely dependable, because the construction is well balanced and all the parts are easily accessible," says Mr. Palmer. "The loading space is large and they are very economical on fuel. A distance of fourteen miles on a gallon of gasoline can be made with them.

"Four cylinder water-cooled motors with inclosed valves situated on the left are used on both models. Gearsets are of the three speed selective type and final drive is by double chain to the rear wheels."

SHOW NOTES

Will Brown, the manufacturer of the Brown truck, which is handled in New England by Frank Wentworth of the Marion Motor Car Company of Boston, is expected at the show today. Mr. Brown is one of the live wires of the old pleasure car industry and was formerly president of the Mais Motor Truck Company. He left this position to build the Brown light delivery wagon.

* * *

T. H. McClean, who came here as assistant general manager of the Mais Motor Company, found in his mail his appointment as general manager of that company. The Mais business in Boston has grown very rapidly under Local Manager Frank.

* * *

J. W. McCrea, general sales agent of the Moore truck, a 1,000 pound delivery wagon, is at the show.

* * *

Frank B. Sullivan, who has charge of the Goodyear solid tire sales for Boston, is a very happy man these days. Frank says he put more Goodyear tires into the truck show than any of his competitors.

* * *

Sales Manager Robinson of the truck department of the Locomobile Company of America came to Boston yesterday and after making a thorough inspection of the visiting complimented Local Truck Manager Frank Crockett on the excellency of his display and the business that he has transacted within the last three days.

* * *

Assistant General Manager Duck of the American Locomotive Company was another visitor to arrive yesterday. He was impressed with the fact that the Boston show is a local exhibit in name only.

* * *

Truck Manager Patterson of the Pierce Company is a visitor at the show and is taking considerable pride in pointing to the fact that whereas three years ago the there was the only company to use the worm drive on trucks there are now shown no less than four trucks equipped with this particular style of drive.

WORK ON NEW HOME OF WHITE CO. INAUGURATED

The new sales and service station of the White Company now under construction on Commonwealth avenue will be one of the largest and best equipped motor car and motor truck establishments in New England. The area of the ground floor alone will be more than an acre, and every department of the new building is being laid out on lines that tend toward the highest departmental efficiency and the greatest promise of service for White owners.

The construction of the building is well under way, and it is expected that it will be completed in time for occupancy on June 15. The foundations have been finished and the next step is the steel work. The design of the building is interesting, because it shows how thoroughly the needs of car and truck owners are anticipated and met by the large and responsible manufacturers.

Architect C. J. Warren who has built two service stations in Boston and several throughout the country for the White Company has designed the salesroom with a floor space of 95 by 94 feet, exclusive of an annex salesroom for the exclusive display of exchanged and rebuilt cars.

Reo Shows Two Different Types at Truck Show

J. M. Linscott of the Linscott Motor Company made his debut in the commercial vehicle field about a year ago, and he has been very successful in marketing the product of the Reo Motor Truck Company of Lansing, Mich.

The Reo is made in two chassis models of 1,500 pounds and two tons capacity respectively. The chassis are equipped with standard bodies and special bodies may be had to meet the requirements of individual owners. The wheel base of the lighter truck is ninety inches and the wheel base of the two-ton truck is 130 inches. The motor on the 1,500-pound car is of the single cylinder horizontal type. The motor is placed under the body. The cylinders have a bore of four and three-fourths inches and a starter of six inches, and the motor is rated at ten to twelve horsepower. A multiple dive clutch is used, planetary gearset and side chain final drive.

The motor of the two-ton truck is a four-cylinder cast in pairs, valves in heads, bore four inches, stroke four and one half inches. Dry multiple disc clutch, selectively controlled three speed gearset and final drive by side chains. Tires on light car, two-inch front and 2 and one-half inch rear. Tires on two ton are 36x4 single front and two and one-half inch rear.

Says Service Is Important Factor in Life of Trucks

"One of the most important factors in making the motor truck efficient is the service that the manufacturer is able to give," said F. S. Aldinger, manager of the Boston branch of the Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company, at the truck show yesterday.

"A truck is just as good as the service it is able to give. Unless it is properly cared for by the manufacturer, the efficiency of the truck is materially reduced. Realizing this, the Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company maintains a large service station in all cities and I rather flatter myself that we have a complete set of all parts, and machine shop equipment. This enables us to give to take care of our trucks immediately."

Speed of Motor Controlled by Sealed Governor

The crank shaft is machined from a solid one piece forging made of a specially specified steel on Peerless trucks. It is two and one-quarter inches in diameter and is mounted on three plain bearings. The front bearing is three and one-half inches long, the centre three and three-eighths inches long and rear four and one-half inches long. Connecting rod and wrist pin bearings are made unusually large.

Exceptionally long life in the crank shaft and the main bearings is attained through the fact that they are made of metals scientifically adapted to withstand wear and the various stresses to which they are subjected. The dimensions are unusually ample so that wear is distributed over the largest practicable area. The main bearing pressures are reduced to a minimum.

The carburetor is of the full float feed type and is fitted automatic jets. It is of Peerless design, built especially for the truck.

The maximum speed of the motor is controlled by the action of a centrifugal governor working on a butterfly valve which is located in the intake manifold between the throttle and the cylinders. This governor limits the speed of the motor to 925 revolutions per minute. The means of adjusting the governor is enclosed in a housing which is sealed.

Overspeeding is one of the most destructive practices the motor truck owner has to contend with. It injures tires and the vibration and shock may cause serious damage to the truck mechanism. The sealed governor deters readjustment for increasing speed in excess of the proper limit.

Within the maximum limit set by the action of the governor speed is controlled by spark and throttle levers on the steering column and by the use of a foot accelerator on the floor of the driver's compartment.

PLEDGE $1,500 TO HARVARD GYM FUND

In one day the senior class at Harvard has pledged $1,500 toward a fund for a new gymnasium to take the place of the Hemenway structure. It is hoped that $10,000 will be raised among the undergraduates within the next two weeks. The new gymnasium will call for a fund of $2,000,000 if the present plans are carried out.

M'CARTY BEST OF BIG FELLOWS SAYS COULON

By W. W. NAUGHTON.

Johnny Coulon, the bantam champion, is one lad who picks Luther McCarty to beat any white heavyweight in existence. He declared himself on that point when asked what would become of McCarty if Gunboat Smith happened to hit him on the chin with that terrific right hand wallop.

John confessed that such a punch might upset Luther for a few seconds, but he would not admit that the Gunboat person has more than an outside chance to decapitate Hal McCarney's champion.

"McCarty will not be beaten by anybody for a long time," said the bantam champion of the big champion. "He's a great fighter, all right. I saw him knocking big, tough fellows dizzy every evening for two weeks and he never, by the cash register, saw a thing to it.

"I don't think Gunboat Smith could stay anywhere near beating McCarty, although I guess I'm not big enough. Luther can wade right into the cyclone and swing his pounds in any combination.

"You know McCarty is the best boxer, won't cause less than 200 heavyweight pounds in some handicap for anybody to give away.

"Bob Fitzsimmons used to be met on his feet good 200-pounder—on Jeffries. Of course Jim weighed around 215, but he never was an example to be at any assertion.

"McCarty, with all his weight, is mighty fast on his feet. He seems thrown, and can take a body kind of a punch. He is a good hitter with either hand and can get things over from any angle. He does not waste much time hooking, either. He hits straight with the left a sort of a punch, and has plenty of steam behind them. Most Smith may be a great hitter, but Luther is too big and fast for that.

Matty Baldwin to Meet Kennedy

Rivals to Box at Manchester

By JACK CONWAY.

MATTY BALDWIN, the Charlestown Lightweight, has been matched to clash with Steve Kennedy of Lawrence in a twelve-round contest at Manchester N. H., on next Tuesday evening. The bout is for the lightweight championship of New England and is sure to be a slashing affair. Dan Gallagher deserves considerable praise for signing up those two star glove wielders.

Baldwin is recognized as the king of the New England 133-pounders but Kennedy has been coming to the front rapidly during the past year and is now able to give a fine account of himself against the best of them. He is the cleverest boxer of his weight in New England and is certain to cause the Brooklyn lad a tremendous amount of trouble.

These two men were matched to battle in Salem last Monday, but the bout was prevented on account of the legal troubles of the Salem organization. Kennedy was greatly disappointed when his bout with Brosman in Salem was called off, and was elated today when informed that he is going to be given an opportunity to test his skill against the stout hearted veteran from Charlestown.

Matty is in New York. He fought Eddie Kaufh in the big city the other night and the majority of the New York newspapers credited him with a victory.

Young Lubore of Manchester has been matched to meet Kid Thomas of Lawrence in a ten-round semi-final which Young Greenwood will entertain. Young De Mare is one of the pro mysteries of six rounds.

* * *

ARE ATTELL "came back" in his bout with Dixie Kirby but can the former featherweight king remain on the straight and narrow path? Were Abe was in his prime he was the wonder of the ring, as has been noted in this column time and again, but he usually did put very little training for his ring contests. Attell would rather sit in at a poker game than punch the bag at his training camp for those long run over the roads.

Attell is now twenty-nine years of age, and will have to train faithfully in order to defeat even second and third raters. In the old days Abe could take on and defeat the best of them with barely any training whatsoever.

* * *

IT IS foolish to consider Attell as a championship contender. Kirby is a good boy but was never classed as a champion or even a near champion. There are hundreds of featherweights in this country who are as good as Kirby and the St. Louis kid. Attell will have to vanquish a second leader in the featherweight division before Eight Days will take him seriously.

I fail to think of what the Attell of ten short years ago would do to the present crop of featherweights and also to a number of the young men who have got an idea that they are destined to win the lightweight championship of the world.

* * *

LUTHER MCARTY is still knocking 'em over before the footlights. He is now slow in this city next week. The players and actresses ought to rake and rat-tat-tat on the dailies appearing on the stage. It is a joke to watch the manager of them perform. It is a treat as to watch the posters of the stage players are the worst.

If the majority of athletes who now appear before the footlights had to depend upon their ability as actors in order to gain a livelihood they would die from poor house. McCarty has got a little start on most of his contemporaries as he has had a great deal of experience in fake fights and world of ours and do other things on the stage outside of boxing.

STAR ATHLETES TO COMPETE IN BIG ROAD RACE

By THOMAS J. HALPIN.
(Quarter-Mile Champion of United States and Canada)

Cross country running is becoming popular among the track athletes in New England. Several close races have already been contested and many other events are being planned for the fall and date athletes.

One of the best of the feature events will be the St. Mary's ten-mile cross country race which is to be conducted in Cambridge next Saturday.

The race will be conducted under the auspices of the St. Mary's Catholic Association of Cambridge and will start from the gymnasium of that association. The course will continue down Harvard street to Harvard square and thence to Brattle street following out this street to Fresh Pond where the competitors will have to run twice around the pond. They will then return over the same route.

Many Star Men In Race.

The committee has made all arrangements to accommodate a large number of the cross country runners and entries are pouring into Humphrey O'Leary, the physical director of St. Mary's Catholic Association, Prospect street, Cambridge.

Every athlete of note, who has taken part in any of the outdoor races this season, will be a competitor in this event. The list includes all of the star North Shore cross long distance athletes who will attempt to capture all of the leading honors. Two prizes will also furnish many of the entries, who intend to take part in the Marathon of April 19, a chance to work out.

It is the intention of the committee to follow the prizes to the first athletes finishing in full order while the star men from the long races will have an opportunity of testing their skill as the time prize will be awarded the runner covering the course in the best elapsed time.

Marathon Booming Game.

The B. A. A. Marathon, which will be held April 19, has given a great boost to cross country running, particularly early in the spring, for it is the desire of every long distance runner to finish first in the long distance grind over the Ashland to Boston route.

As this race comes on April 19, many of the stars who do not take part in the Lake races come out for the Spring Marathon.

MARLIN, Tex., March 21.—Jim Thorpe, the Indian athlete may not become a regular in the New York Giants line up this season, but on one of his wonderful running ability it seems certain that he will be frequently used as a pinch hitter, closed.

30 CANDIDATES FOR CHARLESTOWN HIGH BASEBALL TEAM

A call for candidates was recently issued by Mr. Hogan of Charlestown High and fifty boys turned out. Doherty, the star centre fielder of last year's team, will be seen in his centre garden again, while Holland will cover second. Captain Mosiak will play at short, while Learson will do the bulk of the twirling. Collins and Long will be the backstops, and from all indications it looks as if Charlestown would have a good team on the diamond this year.

SENATORS HONORED.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., March 21.—The Mayor of the town is such an ardent baseball fan that he has declared March 31 a legal holiday. The Washington Americans and the locals, each meet on that day. All schools, stores and civic offices will be closed.

PILGRIMS MEET ATLANTA STAR PLAYERS TODAY

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

ATHENS, Ga., March 21.—Stallings routed a squad of ball players out of bed with the roosters this morning and headed them for Atlanta, where two games are billed, one this afternoon and the other tomorrow. It would be trifling with the weather man to announce positively that the games would be played. It is to be supposed that Atlanta, being only a few miles distant, has been having the same kind of weather that Athens has had for the past two weeks, said weather being about the meanest on record.

But if the games are fought out on the diamond it will be a grand series between two [illegible] pitchers in the last Southern League race. Bill Smith, manager of the Atlanta team is said to have gathered a likely bunch of ball players and as they have been in training about the same time as Stallings' men neither team will have the bulge on the other as far as condition is concerned.

Hardly had they warmed up their arms, before a thick drizzle set in, driving them under the grandstand for shelter. After half an hour of idleness the drizzle let up and the boys started practicing again. They got in more than an hour's work and then the University of Georgia team took the field for some preliminary work.

It was decided to play the game postponed from Wednesday in spite of the rain mist, so at 4 o'clock the Bostons went to bat and the collegians took the field. For two innings the playing conditions were fair but after that a heavy drizzle set in again and when the seven innings game ended a smart shower had appeared on the scene.

Mitchell is Coaching Youngsters.

It is no fun playing ball or practicing with everything soaked in rain, but the Boston players have had to put up with it in order to get their exercise.

Several players, including Seymour, Perdue, Schultz, Smith, Hess, Gonzales and Gervias and Thompson, were left behind when the regulars went to Atlanta today. They will practice, weather permitting, under the direction of Fred Mitchell.

Mitchell is proving an invaluable man to Stallings. The manager tells me he secured Mitchell from the Buffalo Club solely to look after his pitchers. It is possible that he will not catch a championship game all season. He may be used as a pinch hitter once in a while, or he can line them out in good style. Mostly he will be used during the season to warm up the pitchers before the game and after the game has started. He is a wise ball player.

Mitchell was a pitcher, and a good one, in the early days of the Boston American League Club under Jimmy Collins. He was allowed to go to Connie Mack when the Athletics were hard pushed for twirlers. Afterwards he went to the Eastern League, playing in Toronto and Buffalo. While at Toronto as a pitcher, he made up his mind he could not last much longer in that capacity, so he announced that he would become a catcher.

Joe Kelley, the manager, laughed at him, but Mitchell stuck to his purpose and played the bench for several weeks. Finally both Toronto catchers became disabled and Mitchell got his chance. From that time on he caught nearly every game. He developed into a remarkable backstop in sizing up the opponent's play and in being able to coach his pitchers.

Knows the Stallings' System.

He is a little too slow and his arm is not quite good enough for the big leagues, but for what Stallings wants him for he will prove a very valuable man. He knows the Stallings' style of baseball thoroughly. Mitchell has already been of great benefit to the young pitchers here. He has shown Hogue how to get considerably more speed on the ball and has showed Strand wrinkles in the art of pitching that the clever Northwesterner did not know existed.

The players that left for Atlanta today were very glad to get away from Athens for a day or two just for a change of scene if for nothing more and those who were left behind cursed their luck in having to stay here. Athletes get tired of one place after a certain length of time and long for a change of scene. Athens is a fine place to train under normal conditions, but when there is a lot of icy weather no parcs is a good one for the conditioning of ball players.

PIRATES AND RED SOX BATTLE IN RUBBER TODAY

STAHL PLANS TO USE RECRUIT PITCHERS AGAINST PIRATES

By L. R. MURDOCH.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., March 21.—It is "rubber day" at Willington Park, and Jake Stahl decided this morning to give "Dutch" Leonard, his prise left-hander, and Foster, his Texas League right-hander, another chance against the Pirates. After Stahl gave them an opportunity to show what they had against the Pirates Monday, and lost, he drew his ace in the hole, Joe Wood, together with Charley Hall, to beat the Pirates right back Wednesday, and they did. With the series even, Stahl can now try Leonard and Foster again, taking a chance of giving Pittsburgh much advantage in this series.

As Barney Dreyfuss says, "the Red Sox have the pitchers. Whichever way the other fellows turn they always find Stahl with three of them in the hole waiting, and that is the main reason why the Red Sox have the best opportunity to win the American League pennant. That is why they won last year." Stahl can try out his youngsters and afford to drop a game now and then with them, knowing that he can always retrieve by sending in his full battery, when he cares to do so.

The Sox manager had an idea that he might give "Buck" O'Brien some work this afternoon, but that was dependent upon the results shown by the two youths. Monday he sent in Bedient as a steadier and would have won the game with an even "break" in baseball luck. Today he hoped that Leonard and Foster could go through with a ball game all by themselves.

It looks now as if in Wood, Bedient, Hall, O'Brien and Collins, if Collins shows right, Stahl once more has the edge on all rival managers in both leagues and can go through this season. If he can add two young pitchers to the string he has a battery of twirlers against which no other manager has a chance.

Larry Gardner's right arm was still stiff and sore today from the bump he received from a pitched ball Wednesday. If Larry had quit the game immediately, he might have had his arm in shape now, but he stuck gamely, and as a result he could scarcely bend his arm today although he had steamed it out until it was blistered. Directly after the accident Gardner's arm swelled as large as a hat, immediately above the elbow.

Yerkes Has Sprained Back.

Steve Yerkes is suffering from a sprained back due to an accident he received in Charlemoge four years ago. It will probably be all right when warm weather comes. He usually works out of the trouble. The Red Sox went to a minstrel performance last night as guests of President Jame R. Mackey. It was given by the Hot Springs Lodge of Elks. One of the jokes was, "in dat world's baseball series, last year, we was gettin' the results each day in de Elks Club. In de first inning each side got a run and den dey got a whole string of goose eggs. So went over to de club in de second inning and asked a few ob mine what was de score. He said she's happed if ah know, it's running into de millions now and heaben only knows when de'll stop."

Then they produced this old one, which by virtue of its age may be new to the present generation of kids.

Jones—"Say know why de Red Sox will win de pennant this year?"

Interlocutor—"No, Mr. Jones, ah didn't hear bit, why will dey win?"

Jones—"Cause dey's got de smartest men in de game."

Interlocutor—"How is dat?"

Jones—"Well, one ob dem came over to de club, just as de exalted ruler, I should have said de exhausted rooter, offered a $10 bill but to any man who would get up in de club and say dat he had never kissed any other girl but his wife."

Interlocutor—"Well, what of it, Mr. Jones?"

Jones—"Well, the Red Sox guy went home an' tol de story. He said dat nobody got up. Den he's wife she said, 'Well, why didn't you get up,' and he stopped, scratched he's head and said, 'Well, now, ah'd look like a de debil in a silk hat, wouldn't ah?'"

The Sox tried to squeeze in some practice yesterday, but there was nothing doing because just as play began a deluge broke loose and continued off and on all afternoon and most of the evening.

Bobby Byrne, who was hit in the head and nearly killed by one of Joe Wood's "smoke balls" Wednesday, was up and around today. With all due respect to Byrne, his keen mind is all that saves him from being classed a great "bonehead" today. Had any man with a thin skull taken that rap he would have been dead forthwith.

Arthur Butler, the ex-Boston National second baseman, who was stricken with such a high fever Wednesday night that he was delirious and his life was despaired of, was also convalescent today. Butler is expected to recover fully in a few days.

ARCHER MAY JOIN OUTLAW LEAGUE

CHICAGO, March 21.—Should President Murphy of the Chicago National club fail to come to terms with Catcher James Archer within a short time he may lose the star backstop permanently. Archer is said to have received overtures from the Federal League whereby he would get the management of a club, carrying with it a large salary and a percentage of receipts. The clubs of Detroit and St. Louis were mentioned in the deal.

WHITE TO CAPTAIN SEVEN AT RINDGE

George White, who played goal and was one of the forwards of the Rindge Technical School hockey team this Winter, has been elected captain of next year's seven. With the majority of this season's players to return, it is expected a team capable of battling for the interscholastic League championships will compete against Arlington High and Melrose High Schools.

KILBANE GOES TO COAST.

CLEVELAND, O., March 21.—Johnny Kilbane left here yesterday for Vernon, Cal., where he will meet Johnny Dundee on April 16 in a championship battle.

John Paul Jones Sets New Record in Practice Run

ITHACA, N. Y., March 21.—John Paul Jones, the Cornell crack miler, is lowering his own record every week in practice. Yesterday he ran a mile on the board track in 4m. 21 3-5s., lowering his own record, made last week, of 4m. 22s. The full Cornell track team left today to meet Michigan at Ann Arbor in the last indoor meet of the season.

BROOKLINE AND COLUMBIA TANK STARS IN MEET

Columbia University and Brookline Swimming Club swimmers are ready and eager for their first dual meet at the Ocean Pier Baths, Revere, tonight. Columbia's team represents the local club's water polo team 6 to 1 at the National championships held at New York in 1906.

Culman, who is recognized as the speediest swimmer on the Columbia team and one of the fastest collegiate swimmers, will enter the 50 and 100 yard races. In the former event he will have as opponents Captain Ben James and Flint Church of the local club. Culman is credited with doing 50 yards in 26 seconds. Both James and Church have done close to record time in this event.

Columbia has several other performers whose records compare favorably with the best collegiate swimmers in the country. Bullock, who is a star performer in the plunge, has beaten the 75-foot mark and may better it in actual competition.

In addition to his entrance in the 50 [illegible] going hard with James and O'Hearn both swimming in top form.

Brooklyn looks good in the diving with Church, New England champion and Jonas Bet, place winner in the Princeton interscholastic meet, both diving in perfect form. In the 50-yard novice and 100-yard open handicap races close contests are looked for as some of the speediest water in New England have entered part or all of the last event.

The House on the Marsh

A CELEBRATED NOVEL BY FLORENCE WARDEN

PART I.

WHILE I was quietly writing in the school room, after tea, Mr and Mrs Rayner had Haddee, who had not yet gone to bed, come in and conducted me, in a formal procession, upstairs, up the narrow winding turret staircase, that I had so often wanted to explore, first, opening the door of the one room the turret contained. Mr. Rayner, in a short but elaborate speech, bestowed it upon me without further ceremony as the imprisoned princess of the enchanted tower.

I gave a cry of delight. It was an octagonal room, the four sides of which ever looked the marsh, containing each a window while in one of the other sides was a small fireplace with a bright fire burning. The carpet was new, the wall paper was new, there were two easy chairs, one on each side of the fire, a writing table, and a Japanese screen, besides two furniture of my old room.

It looked so bright and so pretty that my eyes danced with pleasure at the sight, and I could not speak while Mr Rayner explained that I was should be lazy and dry out of the damp and he expected me to become rosy, fierce and bookish before long. [illegible] it if he had had no full power behind the paper in one of the cupboards, which was considered damp that the [illegible] turret, so I had been turn down a bed a little but to [illegible] comfortable [illegible] —and that I was to have a fire whenever I liked now and one every day when it began to grow cold.

Dumfounded by Kindness

"I don't know what to say. I don't know how to thank you," said I almost pained by the extent of the kindness showered upon me.

I tried to include Mrs. Rayner in my thanks; but she hung back almost ungraciously, and seemed to have been driven into this demonstration against her will. She was the last of my three visitors to leave the room, and in the moment that we were alone together, before she followed her husband and Haddee downstairs, she said, seeming to be moved out of her reserve by the unaccustomed little excitement, and casting upon me a keen look from her great eyes

"Are you not afraid of sleeping so far from any one? Or do you prefer it?"

I am not at all nervous, but I was enough impressed by her almost eager manner to answer, rather shyly

"No. I don't prefer it. But there is nothing to be afraid of in there." She glanced toward the door and, saying hurriedly "Oh no, of course not! I hope you will be comfortable, Miss Christie," left the room.

I found that by opening out my screen in a particular position I could completely hide the bed and washstand and make myself a real sitting room. Then I sat down by the fire in one of the easy chairs and gave myself up to the enjoyment of this new piece of good fortune; and I was still gazing into the fire, with my feet easily warming—the nights were already cold enough for that, I must say—on a hassock close to the fender, when I heard Sarah coming up the stairs.

I tried to be friendly, however, and when I had thanked her for her trouble I said:

"I wonder this nice room has been neglected so long. How no one ever used it, Sarah?"

"Mr. Rayner used to use it for a study," she said shortly. "I don't know why he gave it up. I suppose it was too high up. That was six months ago, before you came."

Sarah Reassures Her

"It is a long way from anybody else's room, Sarah, isn't it?"

"Mine is the nearest, and I have ears like needles, so you needn't be frightened," said she, in a tone which presently sounded more menacing than consoling.

"It will be rather lonely on a stormy night, the wind will howl so," I said, my spirit beginning to sink under her sharp speeches.

"Oh, you won't want for company, I dare say," she said, with a harsh grating laugh.

"Why, all the company I am likely to get up here is burglars," I answered ingeniously, with my chin beneath my hands. The start she gave startled me in my turn.

"Burglars! What burglars? What are you talking about?"

I looked up amazed at the effect of my words on Sarah, whom, of all people in the world, I should have considered most unmoved. It was pronounction for me to be scolding Sarah!

"Why, I have more courage than you!" I said laughing lightly. "I am not afraid of them. If they came they would soon go back again when they found there was nothing to take. Would you be afraid to sleep up here alone, Sarah?"

But she hardly took the trouble to answer, except by a nod, her black eyes fixed upon me as she spoke, as if she would, and almost as if she could penetrate to my inmost soul. Then she left satisfied with the result of her scrutiny, she leaned into her hard, cold mind, and answering my good night shortly, left me alone.

The next day was Sunday, and there were two strangers in church who attracted the attention of all the congregation. They were two fair-complexioned, light-haired girls who sat in the Rayners' pew, and who had evidently spared no expense on rather tasteless and unbecoming toilettes. I reassured myself fecling not sorry that they were ill-dressed, and glad that one was plain and that the one that was pretty was dowdy freckled, and I wondered how it was that I had grown so ill-natured.

Reade Very Attentive

Mr Laurence Reade sat between them, and he shared his hymn book with the pretty one, and I did so wish it had been with the plain one. And when we came out of church and he and his sister and the two girls trooped out together, the breaking up of the group left him to pair off with the pretty one.

Mr. Rayner asked me at dinner if we had noticed the two girls with the pretty hair in Mr. Reade's pew, and said that he had heard that the one with the blue eyes was the future Mrs. Laurence Reade, and that it would be an excellent match for both of them.

"I noticed that he paid her a great deal of attention at church, and afterward, they paired off together quite naturally," said I.

And that afternoon the heat and the mildews and the dust were worse than ever.

Mr. Rayner complained on the day after he had been walking paler than before, and threatened to have me sent back to my old room if I did not look brighter in the face from that date. Luckily for me, within those two days my spirits improved a little.

Presence Unnoticed

The next day Haddee and I passed by Gentleman Park in our walk, and we over the fence Mr Reade, his sisters, and the two strangers playing lawn tennis.

None of them noticed us at the time, but, as we were returning, I observed that Mr Reade jumped from the grass where he was lounging in the midst of the skirting girls, as if thought continually cold, and shook out of his hat the leaves and grasses with which his companions had filled it. As for them, they were too much occupied with him to see anything outside of the park.

Haddee and I had to go to the village shop with a list of articles which I felt sure we would not get there.

I had been tapping vainly for some minutes on the little counter, on which laid four tallow "candles," a packet of crochet hooks, and a most unleathing piece of bacon, when Mr. Reade doffed into the shop and greeted me with much surprise.

He roamed about, digging his cane into the cheese and looking down a jar by snuff, which he carefully scraped together with his foot and shoveled back, dust and all, into the jar, while I still tapped and still nobody came.

"He must be at dinner," said I resignedly, "in that case we shall have to wait."

For I knew Mr Bowles So Mr. Reade seated himself on the counter and harpooned the bacon with one of the rusty crochet hooks.

I turned to leave the shop. But he stopped me.

"Old Bowles can't be much longer over his dinner, I'm sure," said he, pleadingly. "I want to ask you if you were any better. I thought last Sunday you were looking awfully ill."

"Last Sunday" and I the light of those girls. "I was never better in my life, thank you. And I am quite well. Mr and Mrs. Rayner have put me into the turret to keep me out of the damp. It was very very kind of them to think about it. It is the best room in the house."

"Best room in the house! Then Mr Rayner does it keep in the house at all? I'll be in a few days, but with that decision.

I got up from one chair and turned to the next quite [illegible] in an old story book that she had found.

"Come, Ha! Ha!"

"No, no: that is revenge—it is up worthy of you" said he in a low voice which was a marvel pain. Mr. Rayner is an angel. No, no, not that!"—for I was turning away scorn. "He has his faults; but he is as near perfect as a man can be. Then you are very happy at the Alders now?"

"Yes, thank you."

"And you have no great trouble?"

"Yes, I have Sarah."

"Sarah? But is one of the servants isn't it? A gaunt, shrewd looking person? I've often met her in the road to and from Beaconsborough."

"Yes. She goes out when she likes I think she is a very important person in the household, much more so than Mrs. Rayner."

"Ah! And she is trouble to you?"

"Yes. I'm afraid of her. She doesn't like me. And whenever I want to give her letters to post I never get my answer to them"

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

The Social Calendar

JUST one month from tomorrow, April 22, Alice Cornelia Thaw of Pittsburgh, granddaughter of the late Senator Penrose, will become the bride of Geoffrey G. Whitney of Milton. Boston society people are taking a great interest in this wedding, which will take place at Cumberland Island, Ga., the Southern estate of Mr. and Mrs. George Carnegie, brother-in-law and sister of Mrs. Copley Thaw, as the bride-to-be has been known since her divorce from the Earl of Yarmouth.

Mrs. Thaw is well known in Boston society. She is a frequent visitor at Milton, and it was on one of her visits that Mr Whitney first met her. Society is counting on her as a strong addition, and it is believed that she will take a leading part in the doings of the Boston society set.

Tomorrow evening Miss May Veal, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Veal of Quincy, will become the bride of Arthur Newton, also of Quincy. Mr. Newton is superintendent of the Sunday school in Christ Church. Miss Veal is a teacher in the Sunday school, and is an active member of St. Margaret's Guild of the church.

The Daughters of Vermont observed "Presidents' Day" at the Hotel Vendome yesterday afternoon. The presidents of and secretaries of thirty neighboring clubs were present among the guests. Mrs. Margaret Deland gave interesting selections from her own writing, and Miss Ruth Northell gave piano selections

In the receiving line at the reception were the president of the club, Mrs. Harry B. Stone; the vice presidents, Mrs. Walter Cheney and Mrs. Thomas E. Gallup; secretary, Mrs. Bernay A. Robinson; the secretary, Mrs. O. B. Johnson, and the treasurer, Mrs Edward B. Sawyer.

Frank Chouteau Brown of the Drama League will address the meeting of the Boston Mount Holyoke Alumnae Association tomorrow afternoon at the Hotel Vendome. He will speak on "What Plays Do You Want to Hear?" and touch upon some of the educational aspects of the work of the league.

These are busy times at the home of Mrs. Edwin S. Webster, No. 201 Clarendon street. It is the meeting place of the young society women to rehearse their parts in "Pandora's Box," the play they are to give at the Boston Opera House April 3 and 4, for the benefit of the Sharon Sanitorium. One hundred well-known women are in the cast

Mrs. Douglas Howard Gill, who has been visiting her sisters, Mrs. George B. DeGrasse and Mrs. William Aspinwall of Boston for the past week, has sailed for her home in England on the Campania

Mrs. Amory T. Sherry and Miss Beatrice Putnam of West Medford have sailed from New York on the Colon for the Canal Zone and Costa Rica. On their return they will visit in and about New York

Do You Know That—

A plain little mongrel dog who got his foot crushed in a door has been provided with a diamond leg-joint by his master, Dr. Milton F. Clerk, surgeon, and Vice-Consul for Greece at San Francisco. The diamond was inserted in the joint because silver corrodes under certain conditions. The operation is said to be the most remarkable that has ever been performed upon an animal.

Before the big semi-official dinners which the King gives at Buckingham Palace the table in the State dining room is always inspected by the patron "upholsterer," whose duty it is to see that the splendid piece of furniture is fit to bear its burden. The enormous weight of the royal plate renders this precaution necessary. It is said to have been instituted after a supper table had collapsed at a rout given by George III.

Mrs. Drown Tells How She Teaches Girls to Be Good Housekeepers

Mrs. Mary Bell Drown, Head of the Continuation School in Home Making.

MRS. MARY BELL DROWN of Malden is the only teacher of cookery in America, and she has a story to tell unique to herself and to the city of Boston.

Mrs. Drown is the head of the one continuation school for factory girls at No. 52 Tileston street, in which they are taught, not to make good candy or weave cloth, or glue boxes, but just to make good, sensible housekeepers.

At the present time all of her pupils come from some five or six candy factories in Boston, where the employers have been broad enough and far-sighted enough to allow their girls four hours a week without loss of pay to learn to be good homemakers. These manufacturers believe that the training the girls receive in the continuation school, although not immediately connected with the making of candy, will nevertheless tend to make their employes more efficient and interested in factory work.

The school has been running now for more than a year, and there are three groups of people who are ready to pronounce it an undoubted success. The girls themselves have not the least particle of a doubt of what the training means to them, and while they might not admit it, they smile and blush and look pleased when told that if there were more schools of the sort there might not be so many bachelors in the country.

Mrs. Drown is an efficiency engineer in the kitchen, and describes how the greatest amount of work and the best results can be obtained with the least expenditure of labor and money. She says:

"It is not my policy to provide the girls with the latest and most approved equipment, for they may not have such conveniences in their homes, and it is that they may learn to be efficient with what they already have I am striving. I have been trying to base our housekeeping on the average salary of $12 a week. Of course many of the girls will marry men who get more than that, but it is a good average and if they can manage on that amount they will be better able to run a household on eighteen or twenty. I find it hard to stick to the $15, for when the rent and price of food are considered there is very little left for clothes and almost nothing for amusements.

"I find the girls very receptive, courteous and willing to take my suggestions, and a number of them have become so interested in housekeeping that they have asked me to help them find places where they might cook or become housekeepers in private families."

Besides economy, Mrs. Drown teaches what she terms balanced cooking, that is, the preparation of meals with the proper proportions of proteids, fats, minerals, salts, starch, etc. The meal is made to look as attractive as possible and is served in the daintiest manner.

"I am not only teacher, but I am also a pupil," she says, "and I have learned many new and helpful ways of doing things from the girls. I have great respect for the simple, wholesome foods served in the home of immigrants who still keep their European ways. The Italians can teach Americans much in the way of simple, inexpensive dishes. They use little meat and almost no pastry."

The girls began to troop in, until the bench along the wall of the sitting room was filled from end to end with what Mrs. Drown termed her row of flowers. There were pink, blue and red hair ribbons; gray, black and brown dresses. The girls had just left the candy factories and had come for a two hours' lesson in the art of housekeeping.

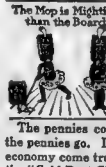
When the dinner was ready, it having taken about an hour and a half to prepare, the whole company sat down to creamed fish and potatoes, coffee, biscuits and cream puffs

The Gold Dust Twins' Philosophy

THE Village Sewing Circle met to gossip, in their little set, but one opinion seemed to hold despite the tendency to "scold." When vexing problems, such as say, "What shall we do on Cleaning Day?" confront the Housewife, she may feel that Gold Dust tackles them with zeal.

The Envied Housewife

Staid matrons told of what a bore it was to scrub each dirty floor; young housewives thought that dishes claimed more worry than some others named. All uniformly took a "bit" from household work and argued it, while all in turn were loud in praise of what a part their Gold Dust plays. Those tasks which, anyway, are mean, decrease with Gold Dust on the scene.



Those "Cost-of-Living" puzzles put the chairman of the club on foot. Said she:—"The Cost-of-Cleaning," too, should mean a mighty lot to you. If all of us combine, to buy, those goods that have a "REASON WHY," ere long our husbands needn't fuss. They'll leave financing games to us."

The pennies count, as you must know, and cleaning makes the pennies go. If Gold Dust cuts the toil in two and makes economy come true why not adopt the "Cleaner way" and join the "Gold Dust Club" today?

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have met a young woman on the car two or three times, and from the first time I would give anything to know her. YOU CAN DO NOTHING

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young girl of eighteen and considered very attractive

About six months ago I met a young man through business and he offered to take me out I accepted and he called several times, after that, at my home. Then he went on his vacation and we corresponded. On his return I saw him once, then did not hear from or see him till three weeks ago, when he wrote and asked if he might call I answered yes, and we spent a very delightful evening. I have not heard from him since. Now I know that I have not offended him, and as I think a great deal of him, what shall I do?

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

THERE was a awful smart gentelman up to the house the other nite, his naim was Billie Lee, at least that is what he seemed like. He is the boss of the Public Skool playgrounds somewhere & all he has to do is to go out & find out what is the best places for the kids to play.

I had a frend that was a member of the Bord of Educashun onst, sed Ma. He was a graduate of Cornell, too, Ma sed, & if there is anything in the world that I luv it is a college graduate. Dosnt you that way?

I dosnt know that I do, sed Billy Lee. beekaus I never loved a college graduate. I am paying no attenshun to college graduates anyhow, beekaus all of my attenshun is being devoted to little bits of kids, the age that kids like yure kid is. I always figgered, Mister Lee sed, that if we talk care of kids that sise the college graduates will talk care of themselfs, the best that any college graduate can talk calr of himself. I never was one, so I dosnt know, sed Mister Lee.

Well, sed Pa, I won't say too much about this question of children gitting educated in public playgrounds instead of in public skools, beekaus wen I was a littel kid there wasen't much in the line of public playgrounds. The only public playgrounds that we had was ritc out in the open air beehind the old red barn, & it was as free as the air we are breething now. Of course it was in a small town, Pa sed, ware them things is always free, but you may be sure it was sum playground, & you may also be sure that I was always the champeen at every one of the sports the boys indulged in.

Pa's Childhood.

I knew that last was cumming, Ma sed. I was sure that you was going to figger sumthing grate in the playground of yure childhood that you are deeskribing. It is too bad that Jim Jeffries wasent making ballers around thare, Ma sed, so you cul have licked him on top of all them other acheevements that you say you had as a boy champeen. You mussent mind my husband, Mister Lee, sed Ma. He is all the time going on that way & you mussent mind my wife, Pa sed to his frend. She is all the time contradicting me.

I never contradicted you in my life, sed Ma.

Yes, you did, sed Pa.

No, I didn't, sed Ma, & I ain't going to start wen I am so old.

But you do argue with me, sed Pa.

I never argued with you in my life, Ma sed.

Yes, you have argued with me, Pa sed. Nevver, sed Ma. I wud die as soon as I wud argue with you.

No, you wullent, Pa sed. You wuddent like to die till you git in one more argument.

Yes, I wud, you impossibel husband, sed Ma.

Children, children, sed Mister Lee, I am interested in playgrounds, but not in prise rings.

That was nice of Mister Lee beekaus it stopped the fite, but he has mour rite to be happy than I have, beekaus he cud talk his coat & hat & go hoam & I have to be with Pa and Ma all the time.

Saraband, a Dance That Shocked People of the Sixteenth Century

THE SARABAND WAS INTRODUCED INTO SPAIN BY THE MOORS IN 1580. STORY BY MARGARET HUBBARD AYER, SKETCH BY MICHELSON

ALL the protests we heard last year against the "Turkey Trot," the "Bunny Hug" and the other new dances which have now been expurgated, de-vulgarized and made proper for drawing room use, all this hubbub was as nothing compared to the outcries made by indignant citizens of the sixteenth century at the popular Saraband.

Like the Turkey Trot, the Saraband is of African origin, and along about 1580 was introduced into Spain by the Moors, who loved dancing and were not too particular about its moral influences, as long as it was amusing.

The Saraband was the original song and dance number that is still with us in refined form.

It was a combination of dancing and singing to the music of a light guitar air and the dancer had to sing a spicy, and one may believe, none too proper couplet and strum his or her accompaniment as well.

The Saraband told a story and the dancer had to be something of an actor and illustrate by gesture and facial expression just what the poem was about. There was little actual dancing, for then the singer would have gotten completely out of breath, but a few steps were taken in time to the music and the body was bent gracefully to the rhythm of the tune. When the music was performed by others the dancers sometimes used their scarfs or shawls as properties to help them illustrate the story better, especially in the later forms of the dance.

The verses were home-made and generally described the latest bit of gossip in the village, or they gave a vivid description of the last brawl or any other interesting kind of story. Naturally the village poet used all the poetic license needed in the making of his tale, and as there were no laws against slander or libel in those days, disputes that arose were settled at once with fists or good steel knives during the dance. This kind of thing grew pretty general and made the dance more exciting, as one could never tell when some incensed person would take exception to the story told by the dancer and make things uncomfortable for all around. When the Saraband was danced by women the song was directed against some common enemy or it was about an imaginary or none too proper story.

"The Saraband is worse than the pest; it is a greater menace to the good morals of our people than war," wrote an earnest and enlightened old man at the beginning of the seventeenth century. Other priests hurled their condemnation at the Saraband from pulpit and one of them even had his scathing words printed and distributed them on hand bills, which was a good deal in the days when printing was comparatively new in Spain.

The Saraband was considered an invention of the heathen devils, but little by little the same thing happened to that dance that is happening now to the trot. It was tamed down and all the vulgarity expurgated. The old songs were thrown out on the rubbish heap and some of the suggestive and indecent steps were eliminated. The "Saraband," who had been a degraded creature of the streets, became a polished lady of the court, and even the Queen was well acquainted with her.

In this new and idealized form the Saraband exists today and is taught in dancing schools, though the dancer does not sing to her own accompaniment any more, except in Spain. There the songs are really poetic and charming or funny, and would not offend the good old monk who spent his time denouncing the Saraband and praying for the souls of the dancers.

Now it took the Saraband about 100 years to conform to the laws of common decency, and it has only taken one short season of the Turkey Trot to be transformed into the perfectly innocuous "One Step." This teaches us that the people who say that the world is not getting better are pessimists and don't know their history.

Won't It Soon Be Spring

By LILIAN LAUFERTY

DEAR MOTHER EARTH, won't it soon be Spring?
Was that a robin? I heard him sing!
Sweetly it came to me through the ground
So that I woke from my slumber sound.
There was a murmur as soft and sweet
As patter and tiptoe of fairy feet;
Each grass blade is trembling in tiny sprout—
O Mother Earth, may I please come out?

Dear Mother Earth, in your heart of brown
Here I have lain in my sleeping gown—
Now I would cast it away and thrill
Up to the world as a gold daffodil.
Now I would push through the ground that lies
Over my heart and below the skies;
There is a message I long to bring.
Dear Mother Earth, is it almost Spring?

Dear Mother Earth, won't the Spring come soon?
Can't we set life to its gentle tune—
Ripple and murmur and ebb and flow
Tinkle and whisper of life aglow?
Here I have lain in my slumber fast,
Now I'm awake. Is the Winter past?
I want to see skies and the birds a-wing.
Kind Mother Earth, won't it soon be Spring?

Dear Mother Earth, I shall have to go;
Maybe it's cold, and the frost and snow
Will wither my leaves and blacken my gold,
But I can't stay in your dark, brown mold.
I'm coming—I'm here! Oh, I had to see
What the brooklet would murmur to welcome me.
Hark! that's the robin—I hear him sing:
"Daffodil, dear, you have brought the Spring!"

Boilers and Bodies

This man knows what fuel develops the greatest energy and how to feed it to his boiler.

Do you know that much about the fuel for your body?

Without going deeply into the subject here is a fact which you may prove in any scientific work on the subject:

Oatmeal furnishes the body most of the important elements the body needs in almost exactly the proportions the body needs them.

If you would like to see how delicious oatmeal can be, try H-O Oatmeal.

It is the one and only oatmeal which is ready for assimilation by your body after only 20 minutes of cooking. That is due to the over-two-hours' cooking that we give it at the mill.

Why not H-O in the morning?

The Ways of a Woman

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE

EVERY mother of several children is qualified to serve on any grievance committee.

* * *

The old-fashioned woman, when her husband ill-treated her, told her troubles to the Lord. The more modern woman tells them to a lawyer.

When a woman has a poor figure, the other women will do this much: They will admit it is natural.

* * *

Every woman who does all her own work knows what it means to exceed the speed limit.

* * *

Give a woman a rocking chair and a handkerchief and she is prepared to weep with the whole world.

* * *

When a woman talks beautifully of her faith in her husband, it is a pretty good sign she has never been called upon to use it.

* * *

Occasionally a woman looks at her husband and wonders if she wouldn't have been happier if she had remained single. Then she remembers the children, and decides that she wouldn't.

* * *

When a woman has more babies with her on the street than she can well manage, she usually also has a feather on her hat which the wind has blown out of place.

* * *

It takes a strong woman to say that it came from the baker's when a guest praises the cake.

* * *

After a woman has been married a few years she doesn't have any more respect for the men than a good cook has for a hotel dinner.

* * *

A woman ought to be pretty to console her for being a woman at all.

TIME TO TAKE COUNSEL, FORBES WARNS BANKERS

By B. C. FORBES.

Good Friday brings little cheer for the financial world, and for some Fridays to come the business would will not feel hilarious. Despondency is growing deeper and blacker in banking circles, and already mercantile failures are occurring with unpleasant frequency.

To discuss truthfully and in plain language what is going on in the most influencial circles in New York is at this moment a task so delicate that I shrink from attempting it. May the suggestion be offered, however, that the clearing house authorities or some other powerful interest take steps to bring our leading bankers together and decide upon a definite course. Things are not moving satisfactorily. The trend is dangerous.

A letter sent out this week by the president of an important national bank might be discussed by such a meeting. Are scare-raising communications warranted? Are they calculated to do good or harm? These questions can properly be considered in a friendly spirit and some sort of understanding reached as to what course should be steered.

Let Bankers Take Counsel.

"One of the calmest bank executives" was quoted in one responsible New York newspaper yesterday as having talked in a panicky vein. "In fact," said this prominently displayed article, "it is considered in some banks that it may be found necessary in the next few months to take advantage of the emergency circulation law or to issue Clearing House to talk for publication about Clearing House certificates—a strictly panic measure—is it not time the bankers took counsel together and reached sober conclusions as to what their duty is both in speech and action?

Pope's lines on vice spring to mind in the panic talk now being indulged in—the ones you remember, about being "A monster of so frightful mien," but "seen too often, familiar with her face, we finally embrace."

Let me, by way of contrast with the foregoing, quote one recognized banking authority, a financier interested in various important industries:

Fundamental conditions are sound. We had good crops last year and prospects for this year are excellent. Our banks are well situated, at least the ones that pay more attention to commerce than speculation. There has been very little loss on commercial paper of the quality that New York banks buy.

I should mention a comparatively new source of strength. Nearly every large bank now uses a considerable sum—say where from a few to upward of $20,000,000—in foreign exchange. Exchange is a pretty good, quick asset. We could call upon Europe for payment should occasion arise.

Then at least some of our banks carry fairly big cash balances on deposit abroad. If necessary, the banks could get money from that source, and, personally, I see no reason for becoming half so nervous as Wall Street is now.

If Wall Street bankers cannot be cheerful, is it not their bounden duty to be as cheerful as they can?

KOEHLER EXHIBITS DELIVERY WAGON AT BIG TRUCK SHOW

The H. J. Koehler S. G. Company is showing a light commercial car at the show that ought to be a big seller. The cars shown at Mechanics' Building are of the delivery type and there is also a stripped chassis on exhibition.

W. H. Shutt, the local manager for the Koehler company, said that in announcing the new model equipped with thirty-six inch artillery wheels and tube front and rear with two and one-half inch solid rubber tires fitted on demountable rims his company meets the demand of many merchants who prefer the thirty-six rather than the forty inch wheel.

Many improvements and refinements have been added that all make for efficiency, reliability and economy, including the model 1 Schebler carburetor.

Many Advanced Featured on the G. M. C. Trucks

The G. M. C. electrics exhibited at the Mechanics Building are conspicuous in that they represent a development in vehicle engineering practice thoroughly up to date, and although this line of electric trucks produced by General Motors Truck Company is new and progressive in design, there is back of it the accumulated experience of years in electric truck construction and operation.

One of the most conspicuous improvements is the placing of the battery box above the frame under the driver's seat. This is said to eliminate the labor, time and trouble of disconnecting and drawing out the battery for inspection, as every cell is easily reached by raising the driver's seat. The second improvement of note is the placing of the controller, ampere hour meter, safety switch and other vital parts under a hood in front of the dash, giving greater accessibility, insuring better care and permitting a thoroughly workmanlike construction.

Taken together, the G. M. C. electric chassis is built in accord with the most accepted automobile practices. May features are based on advanced foreign achievements and the result is a clean-cut design that bids fair to approach very near the common goal of all manufacturers —maximum car mileage at least cost.

STANDPATISM IS DEAD, SAYS W. J. BRYAN

DES MOINES, Ia., March 21.—Secretary of State William J. Bryan declared before the members of the Jefferson Club here, on the occasion of their annual banquet, that "Standpatism is a thing of the past."

Mr. Bryan dwelt upon the fact that he believed the highest accomplishment of the present administration would be the restoration of what was the spirit of the forefathers to the institutions of the United States.

"You cannot cross the United States," he declared, "without passing through a State which is governed by a progressive Democrat. Ohio elected a Progressive at the last election, as did Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, and you came very near to filling out this list of Western States by electing one here in Iowa. Just a day or two before I left Washington a new United States Senator arrived. He was a progressive Democrat from New Hampshire.

Mr. Bryan will go to Lincoln, Neb., for a few days before going again to Washington.

WIFE SLAIN; DRAG RIVER FOR HUSBAND

BELFAST, Me., March 21.—The Belfast River is being dragged today for the body of Emery Danforth, who is reported to have taken poison and jumped overboard after killing his wife by battering her head against a chimney in their home in East Belfast.

The first intimation of the crime was received from the twelve-year-old son of the couple, who startled the neighborhood with his cries as he ran from the house. A member of the Hopkins family nearby asked him why he did not go home and the boy replied:

I can't go home. Papa has just filled mamma and the floors in the house are all covered with blood. He bit her over the head with a club and then beat her head against the chimney until she died. Then he drank something. He said it was poison, and if that didn't do the work he intended to drown himself. He told me not to give any alarm, but I got scared and ran out.

One of the Hopkins boys telephoned the police from the home of K. W. Burgess. A search of the house was made and Mrs. Danforth's body was found in a bedroom upstairs. The room showed signs of a struggle and the club, with which she is said to have been struck, was found on the floor.

The house is situated on the bank of the river. The police believe Danforth, in a fit of insanity, killed his wife, drank poison from the bottle and threw himself into the river from the bridge. Danforth was forty and his wife thirty-six.

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST. BOSTON, MARCH 21, 1913.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN NEW ENGLAND, DAILY AND SUNDAY

The Boston American's Policy for Civic and Industrial Progress In Boston

FIRST, a greater Boston Port.

SECOND, the extension of more railroads to Boston.

THIRD, the establishment of new steamship lines in connection with this port.

FOURTH, the encouragement of new business enterprises.

FIFTH, a systematic plan for the development of Metropolitan Boston.

SIXTH, the improvement of the streets and transportation facilities.

SEVENTH, the promotion of education.

EIGHTH, sufficient and just laws regarding the manufacture and sale of foods.

NINTH, the establishment of permanent Grand Opera.

TENTH, the unremitting improvement of the AMERICAN, so that it may the better serve its constituents — the great reading public.

One-Sixth of the World's Big Ships Come or Are Coming to Boston—That Is Why a 40-Foot Channel Is Needed

The attention of all New England Congressmen and Senators is called to the peculiar position of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors upon the question of a survey for a channel 2,000 feet wide and 45 feet deep at mean low water from the sea to President Roads and the increasing of the depth of the existing 35-foot channel in the inner harbor to 40 feet at mean low water.

In its notice of public hearing the engineers assume the attitude that Boston, being surpassed by the total value of the exports and imports of New Orleans and Galveston, has no right to expect better treatment from the federal government than those cities.

It is true that the two Southern ports have slightly surpassed Boston in the total value of their exports and imports. The value of the exports and imports, however, is not the business of the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors. That board is concerned with the commercial necessity of deepening and improving port facilities, not with the cost of what the ships bring in and carry out.

It should not have been necessary for the Port Directors of Boston to explain the difference between the commerce of the Gulf ports and of this city. The engineers might have been expected to be aware of it.

Galveston and New Orleans are served by a fleet of freight steamers, very numerous but of small size. A ship of 10,000 tons is rarely sent to the Gulf ports, because there is practically no passenger trade between the Gulf and Europe. A 30-foot channel is ample depth of water to accommodate freight steamers, and New Orleans has now a 35-foot channel.

Boston rivals Galveston and New Orleans as a freight port and carries on a tremendous passenger business of which the Gulf ports know nothing.

The entire cotton crop of the South passes to Europe through the Gulf ports, and that is the total business of those ports with Europe.

The value of Boston's imports is $150,618,233, and Galveston's is $3,937,307. New Orleans' imports are valued at $83,354,480.

As Chairman Bancroft of the Port Directors demonstrated, ONE-SIXTH OF THE WORLD'S SUPPLY OF SHIPS OVER 500 FEET LONG operate from Boston or are under contract to do so. A fleet of thirty steamers over 500 feet long enter Boston or will be entering this port very shortly. That is why a 40-foot channel is needed.

No American port except New York has any right to be considered in the same breath with Boston as a passenger gateway, and that is why a 40-foot channel is needed here.

The New England Congressmen should act together upon this matter, regardless of politics. It is vital to this port that its progress should not be blocked by federal red tape.

A port that is spending $8,000,000 of its own money and is likely to devote $50,000,000 to port improvements has a right to demand government co-operation. Boston does demand it.

This Is NOT an Editorial for the Women

It Is an Essay on PRACTICAL Politics—A Little Reminder to the MEN of Massachusetts That the Democratic Party Promised, Last Fall, to Do Its Level Best to Submit an Equal Suffrage Amendment in the Year 1914—We Hope Democrats in the Legislature Have Not Forgotten That Promise—We Earnestly Advise Them NOT to Forget It

The members of the Massachusetts House of Representatives are NOT going to dispose of the EQUAL SUFFRAGE QUESTION next Tuesday. There appears to be widespread misunderstanding about THAT. It is well for citizens to understand the situation clearly.

The question which comes up for decision on Tuesday next in the House is NOT whether Massachusetts women shall VOTE. It is whether the MEN of Massachusetts shall be given an OPPORTUNITY to vote on the question of equal suffrage.

Word comes from Beacon Hill that SOME gentlemen up there, who CALL themselves Democrats, are showing a disposition to flock with the discredited Republican majority on this subject and vote against submitting this vital question to the men of Massachusetts.

The AMERICAN hopes that NO Democrat will be so stubborn, so foolish, so short-sighted.

They will do well to have in mind that a special election is at hand, in the Thirteenth Congressional District, to fill the vacancy caused by the elevation of Senator Weeks. Every Democrat in Massachusetts, we believe, hopes for—and expects—the election of John J. Mitchell of Marlboro.

What will be the aspect of the Mitchell campaign, next month, if the Democratic standard bearer appears before the people of the Thirteenth District as the candidate of a party which has so recently, in the Massachusetts Legislature, VIOLATED ONE OF ITS SOLEMN PLEDGES TO THE MEN OF MASSACHUSETTS?

Surely the Democrats at the State House cannot have forgotten that six months ago their party adopted, in Faneuil Hall, the PLATFORM on which Foss and Walsh and their associates based their SUCCESSFUL appeal to the people. To refresh the memory of good Democrats in the Legislature we quote one of the planks of that October platform.

"WE BELIEVE THAT THE QUESTION OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE SHOULD BE SUBMITTED TO THE VOTE OF THE PEOPLE, IN THE MANNER PROVIDED BY THE CONSTITUTION."

That was a pledge made to the men of Massachusetts—not to the women—and the men of Massachusetts DEMAND ITS STRICT FULFILLMENT. The time has gone by when a platform was "something to get in on." In our day, a platform is properly regarded as sacred and binding. Violated, however, it may readily become something to go out on.

Next November a State election will be held in Massachusetts. The Republicans will make a desperate effort to come back. The Progressives will fight as strenuously to push ahead.

How do our DEMOCRATIC friends at the State House purpose to go into battle in November? As DECEIVERS? As COWARDS? As men who have been TRIED AND FOUND WANTING?

The suffrage question will not down. Deceit will never settle it nor trickery kill it. It has got to be met. The best way for Democrats to meet it is like men.

If the Republican majority in the Legislature wants to dodge the suffrage amendment again, let the Republican majority do the dodging and take the consequences!

And may EVERY Democrat keep EVERY DEMOCRATIC promise to the people—men AND women—of Massachusetts.

More Tornadoes Last Week Than at Any Other Time Since 1884—Storms Play Strange Tricks

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

NOT since 1884 has there been such an outburst of tornadic storms as that which occurred in the West and South last week.

A full-fledged tornado is the most awe-inspiring meteor that ever sweeps through the atmosphere. An ordinary tempest creeps upon its victims by more gradual steps, gains strength by degrees, covers the whole country for hundreds of miles around with its indefinite shadow, and seems only a common storm that has developed unusual power.

But a tornado is a kind of atmospheric demon, whose black, distorted form can be seen swiftly approaching from far off, whirling and dancing like a gigantic dervish, and tearing up the very soil in its fury.

It lets down from the menacing cloud above a huge trombe or trunk of inky blackness, with lightning playing about it, and, whizzing with the speed of a buzz saw, it blows a path through a forest; tears away the front of a gravel bank with the force of a hydraulic jet; scoops up the contents of a pond to the very mud; sucks away creeks.

It demolishes barns, haystacks, houses, churches, scattering their remnants over a square mile of territory; snatches up cattle, horses, sheep, and even men and women—sometimes dashing them to death, and sometimes giving them a wild ride through the air only to set them down at last uninjured.

The path of a tornado is from a hundred to six hundred yards wide, and the length of its course may vary from one or two up to fifty miles. Almost invariably it moves toward the northeast, with a speed of from twenty to fifty miles an hour. The centre, where the destructive power is greatest, occupies from one to five minutes in passing over a given point. On account of the uniformity in the direction of the movement of tornadoes, it is not difficult to get out of their track if they can be seen, or heard, coming a quarter or a half hour in advance.

A single tornado may level a half dozen villages and plough a track of destruction across two or three counties.

But when, as happened last week, a horde of these "twisters" breaks upon the face of the land there is hardly any meteorological disaster so serious as that which they produce.

Tornadoes always occur in the southeastern quarter of a cyclonic disturbance. Such a disturbance may be from a thousand to two thousand miles broad, producing nothing but rains and moderate winds over most of its area, but in the southeastern quadrant, where warm southerly winds are brought into contact with cold winds from the northwest, whirls are set up, as eddies appear at the edge of conflicting currents of water, and there, if the contrasts of temperature are extreme, quickly develop into tornado funnels.

In every case the direction of the whirl of a tornado is from right to left, the same as that of all cyclonic winds in the northern hemisphere. In the case of the general winds this is readily explained as a result of the rotation of the earth on its axis. In the southern hemisphere the winds turn from left to right.

Some of the performances of tornadoes seem incredible. Occasionally the whirling trombe is withdrawn toward the clouds, skipping a threatened point, only to dart down again with vicious speed and redoubled power. Small objects, like loose nails, are driven into trees or board fences. Victims sometimes have their clothing stripped off and torn to shreds. On one occasion a corn-stalk was driven partly through a door, "recalling the incident of shooting a candle through a board." A four-inch scantling, ten feet long, was driven by a tornado three and a feet into the ground.

Man's Laws for Women—It Was Only When Woman Revolted from Man-Established Customs She Began to Evolve from the Harem and Cloister.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

A MAN is never so amusing as when he attempts to lay down laws for the conduct of woman.

His theories are usually at variance with his actions toward the fair sex, and so frequently opposed to woman's best interests. It was only when woman revolted from man's established customs and traditions that she began to evolve out of the harem and cloister.

She had a difficult road to travel up to her present position of usefulness and independence, because all the highways were owned by man, and everywhere she encountered the sign: "No Trespassing."

Yet she pushed her weary way along, step by step, until she compelled the more progressive minds to realize her right to develop her latent powers of mind and body, and to enjoy God's world outside the man-reared walls of conventions and restrictions.

Most men today accept the new conditions and realize the injustice of the old. They realize, too, the value of the new conditions to the race-to-be, and rejoice in the outlook. Occasionally, however, an otherwise progressive male being shows the "old man" spirit and becomes either patronizing, or preachy, or oppressive in his attitude to the "New Woman."

Once upon a time, not beyond the memory of the ingenue, a bachelor who is famous for his brilliancy of mind stooped to poor, frivolous woman's level for a moment and gave her advice regarding the care of her complexion.

His Counsel Consisted of Mouldy Advice for the Care of Cuticle

This counsel consisted of the mouldy old instruction to give her cuticle no thought beyond keeping it clean, and to use only soap and water in the process; to make no effort to avoid or remove freckles, as they were attractive.

Yet this man, like most others, never fails to compliment the woman who possesses a fine complexion, and he invariably tells his women acquaintances when they are tastefully attired.

Since the world began men have urged women to ignore personal appearance and to think little of matters pertaining to the toilet, and have pursued and wooed (and won when possible) the woman who paid no attention to their advice and who made it a point to keep herself becomingly dressed and well groomed.

It is the man who criticises the woman's freckles and wrinkles ten times where it is another woman once.

It is man who, by his conduct, demands beauty of woman, and then utters platitudes to her upon the unimportance of a good complexion.

It is man who pays devoted attentions to the well-dressed girl, and then urges woman to turn her mind to higher subjects than self-adornment.

It is man who should take the prize for inconsistency. The wise and sensible woman will make her complexion the subject of dignified study. She will be careful in her diet; careful in her exercise; she will protect her face from rough winds and burning suns, yet give it ample fresh air. She will understand how the pores of her skin need feeding and replenishing at times, just how her system needs food; and she will give them pure creams and oils and bracing astringents.

She will be careful in using soaps and will use no water unless rain water straight from the skies; because she will value the fine quality of her skin as highly as she would a fine fabric in her wardrobe.

If she is freckled she will (if she understands how valuable an asset is a fair, well cared for skin free from blemish) consult specialists; and find something which keeps the ugly spots in abeyance; just as she would consult a good dentist to straighten an ugly tooth.

And she will find herself appreciated by mankind for her efforts when they show in results, despite the meaningless platitudes they utter on the subject.

Recently another man contributed ancient ideas to modern progress by the following utterances:

Womanhood, Wifehood and Motherhood Are the Stellar Trinity

"Womanhood, wifehood, motherhood—the stellar trinity in being's firmament without which all is dark—are being obscured by the sickening incense called the 'New Thought,' and woman, the friend and helper of man, is in a fair way to become a nonentity.

"Our advice to women would be: Leave psychology alone; stop prying into metaphysics; steer clear of the occult; give a wide berth to all foolish self-investigation—and be women."

This man should have lived in the days when it was considered masculine and bold for a woman to study anything outside of the domain of the nursery, and when men forced her to be classed with wantons if she insisted upon an education.

This man himself woefully needs educating in the philosophy of the new thought.

Let us see what is the teaching he calls "a sickening incense" and warns woman to abjure.

The "New Thought" creed tells woman to think of herself as an immortal spirit blessed with all the divine qualities.

It tells her to lift her whole life to meet this thought; to love her Creator and her fellows; to weed out every unkind and uncharitable feeling; to drive away all jealousy; all envy, all anger, and all despondency, by the constant assertion of her divine self. It tells her to say, and to believe, that creation had need of her, and that all she desires will come to her if she holds fast to love.

It bids her be patient under adversity, believing all trials are but lessons for her soul and that only love, health, hope, success and usefulness are her real possessions in this life.

"New Thought" Bids Her Take Her Share of God's Opulence

To assert her share of God's unlimited opulence daily, and to believe that nothing but good can come to her, and to wish nothing but good to any one on earth, however unlovable.

To consider illness and poverty and trouble as transitory conditions which are not to be seriously talked or thought about; to thank God for existence every hour, and to rejoice in the privilege of helping the world to grow better by living a useful and loving and patient and cheerful life.

This is New Thought, good sir, and it is spreading its beautiful philosophy all over the land, and doing what your musty old scarecrow creeds can never do—making the world a kinder, sweeter, better place for mortals to be born into, and showing women the way to a higher understanding of wifehood and motherhood.

Vain is your plea to woman to "stop prying" into the inner self—to "stop self-investigation." She has looked into her own soul and found God within. She who has done that will never need to seek Him elsewhere; for He will be always omnipresent.
